Lindbergh Urges America
To Stay Out of European War

Washington—(P)—Senator Thomas (D-Utah), a member of the foreign relations committee, expressed the view today that the Soviet-Japanese agreement to suspend fighting on the Manchoukuo-Outer Mongolia border might be a retaliatory move against the United States for serving notice of intention to terminate the 1911 commercial treaty with Japan.

Secretary Hull notified the Japanese government in July that the 28-year-old treaty would lapse Jan. 28, 1940.

While Washington awaited full significance of the Russo-Japanese truce, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh appealed to the United States in a radio address to stay out of the European war. In one of his infrequent public utterances, the famous flyer warned the nation not to be "misguided by this foreign propaganda to the effect that our frontier lies in Europe."

"One need only glance at a map to see where our true frontiers lie," he continued. "What more could we ask than the Atlantic ocean on the east and the Pacific on the west? No, our interest in Europe need not be from the standpoint of defense, our own natural frontiers are enough for that."

May Be Danger
Some diplomats in Moscow looked upon the Russo-Japanese armistice as the possible forerunner of a non-aggression pact between the two countries. Noting this, Senator Thomas told reporters:

"If it means an unfriendly Japan, the danger would be closer to our shores. If it is a sincere non-aggression pact, it is a peaceful move."

Thomas said a Russian-Japanese agreement would make it possible for Japan to withdraw troops from Manchoukuo and "fight all the harder in China."

Although Colonel Lindbergh made no mention of the arms embargo clause of the neutrality act, which the Roosevelt administration will seek to repeal at the special session starting next Thursday, two prominent Republicans spoke out last night in support of the administration's position.

Support Roosevelt
Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of state, and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, made their positions known in letters to the New York Times. Stimson said repeal offered the only sure way for the United States to keep out of war, and Butler contended the neutrality act represented a policy of economic nationalism which he said was "the chief cause of the world's troubles."

Meanwhile, former President Hoover suggested in New York the creation of an international commission composed of neutral nations of northern Europe to "determine where, and when, and whether these undertakings not to war on innocent men and women and children have been intentionally violated."

Lindbergh, who on Thursday concluded five months of service at the war department, spoke from his hotel room.

"We must either keep out of European wars entirely or stay in European affairs permanently," he said. "Our safety does not lie in fighting European wars. It lies in our own internal strength, in the character of the American people."

Australian censors last year cut out 28 per cent of British and 15 per cent of United States films as "objectionable." This rather upsets the belief that all harmful pictures originate in Hollywood. Or perhaps it's merely the Australian point of view. At any rate, we're just 13% less "objectionable" than our conventional English cousins as far as movies are concerned.

Armistice to Go Into Effect Today In Frontier Area

Commission to be Organized to Determine
Russ-Jap Boundary

Moscow—(P)—An armistice today in Far Eastern fighting between Soviet Russia and Japan was stipulated in an agreement which diplomatic quarters saw as foreshadowing a possible non-aggression pact between those traditional enemies.

The official Soviet news agency, Tass, said the armistice, announced last night, would go into effect today.

Military forces of the two powers, which have been fighting intermittently for four months on the frontier of sovietized Outer Mongolia and Japanese-dominated Manchoukuo, would maintain positions which they held at 1 o'clock p. m. yesterday.

The armistice culminated negotiations started not long after Soviet Russia on Aug. 24 signed a non-aggression pact with Germany, Japan's partner in the anti-communism agreement.

The most recent hostilities on the Manchoukuo frontier started May 11, and at times reached great intensity as aerial and mechanized forces were brought into play. The outbreak was only one, however, of a series of difficulties the two

Bar Association Ballots on Plan

Mail Poll to Decide if Lawyers Favor 2 Supreme Court Divisions

Green Lake—(P)—The board of governors of the State Bar Association of Wisconsin decided today to conduct a mail poll of Wisconsin attorneys to determine whether they want the supreme court to put in operation a proposed plan under which the court would sit in two divisions.

The association at its last meeting asked the court to function in that manner. The plan contemplated two three-man divisions with the chief justice sitting with both. In outstanding cases, the entire court would sit in a body.

The court agreed to give the plan a trial during the present term but found the number of important cases pending and other obstacles would prevent. Accordingly, the justices informally suggested that the association conduct a poll to determine whether the majority of the lawyers favored the plan.

The board of governors also decided to set up a committee to assist in the organization of a junior bar section.

A mid-winter institute at which insurance law will be discussed also was agreed upon.

The association's institute on administrative law problems.

Addressing the institute, Vernon Thomson, republican speaker of the state assembly, said the administrative-sponsored law to reorganize the state tax commission would modernize that department by separating administrative functions from quasi-judicial duties.

2 Darlington Youths Lose Lives in River

Darlington, Wis.—(P)—Burton Reese and Kenneth Lancaster, Darlington High school students, were drowned in the Koshong river near here yesterday afternoon when they decided to get relief from the heat by going bathing.

Three girl students who accompanied the boys stopped a CCC truck for help, but the occupants arrived too late to save the youths.

Squalus Air Intake Valve Refuses to Close; Believed Probable Cause of Tragedy

Portsmouth, N. H.—(P)—Huddled in the slimy, dripping interior of the salvaged submarine Squalus, members of a naval board of inquiry grimly viewed a mechanical demonstration which dramatically illustrated what may have caused the craft to plunge to tragedy May 23.

Only a short time after 25 of the 26 dead were removed from the rusty, battered hull yesterday, board members watched a navy man yank a lever designed to close two air intake valves on the sub. The smaller of the two banged shut promptly. The other—and larger—valve did not budge.

The side pumped the gear two or three times and the valve finally closed, but Lieutenant Oliver F. Naquin, rescued commander of the $4,000,000 submersible, promptly submitted to board members a reiteration of his belief that the vital valve behaved the same way 116 days ago when the Squalus sank in 240 feet of water, 15 miles off this port, during routine test dives.

Saddened navy men removed 23 bodies from the vessel and although there was fear one body had been lost forever in the sea, none could say definitely until a thorough search had been made. The body not found was that of Robert F. Thompson of Nashville, Tenn., ship's cook. Some officials said his body might have been lost through an open hatch during the difficult salvage operation.

Most of the bodies were found heaped at the foot of a ladder leading to an escape hatch similar to the one through which 33 sur-

Smothering Heat Retreats As Wind Shifts; 27 Deaths Attributed to Record Wave

September's record-breaking heat wave began cracking today with more reasonable temperatures prevailing and fair and cooler weather predicted tonight and Sunday in Appleton and vicinity.

The thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building showed 82 degrees early this afternoon, a sharp contrast from the maximum of 94 degrees recorded at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

The low-est temperature during the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning was 68 degrees at 6:30 this morning, the wind shifting during the night to dissipate the withering temperatures of the last four days. At least 27 deaths were attributed to the sizzling temperatures which in some cases sent the mercury to the 100-mark and beyond over a wide area.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel of the Chicago weather bureau reported the heat front had been broken all the way from the Rocky mountains to Lakes Michigan and Superior, and as far south as Iowa and most of Kansas. He predicted that by late tonight or tomorrow relief would be felt as far east as the lower Ohio valley.

The mercury reached the high nineties in most of Wisconsin yesterday. Numerous cities reported new all-time September records. Milwaukee, with 93, had its hottest day since July 11, 1936. Janesville reported a maximum temperature of 102 yesterday, the third consecutive day of 100-degree weather.

Superior-Duluth, usually decidedly cool at this time of year, had a high of 89. Other top readings included Green Bay 94, La Crosse 96, Madison 96, Park Falls 90, and Wausau 92.

Heavy Battle Raging on Western Front; Germans Try to Crush 'Lost Army'

Hope to End Resistance,
Then Concentrate On Warsaw

MOVE ON LWOV

Invaders Believe Poland's
Capital May Surrender

Berlin—(P)—A German communiqué reported today additional divisions had been hurled against Kutno in a determined drive to crush a Polish "lost army" which has held out for six days and then concentrated on Warsaw 60 miles farther east.

Kutno is a key to a diminishing circle of territory still held by the Poles west of Warsaw and a buffer between the beleaguered capital and the German army to the west.

Importance of the position was demonstrated by the visit yesterday of General Walter von Brauchitsch, German army chief of staff, to front lines there to confer with leaders and give orders.

The German announcement was taken to indicate the plan is to destroy the divisions at Kutno quickly, while closing the ring of steel tighter around Warsaw in the hope the capital may surrender.

The high command also said 8,000 prisoners and 126 cannon had been captured by the Germans as they moved into Praga, a Warsaw suburb on the east bank of the Vistula river.

Move to Southeast
Meanwhile another section of the eastern army was reported pushing to the southeast with Lwow as its principal objective.

(Lwow, principal city of southeastern Poland, is 225 miles from Warsaw.)

The communiqué said scattered divisions of the Polish army were being swept back by the German advance. It added that the Poles still held Lwow and Bilgoraj, 70 miles to the northwest, toward Warsaw.

At the same time, the communiqué cited successes in drives to the northeast and southeast. Przemyśl, 50 miles west of Lwow, and Bialystok, 110 miles northeast of Lwow, were mentioned.

100 French Sailors Killed by Explosion Aboard Minelayer

Paris—(P)—One hundred French sailors today were reported killed in an explosion aboard the 4,773-ton French cruiser-minelayer Pluton.

Advices reaching the French government said the explosion, followed by fire, occurred aboard the warship while she was anchored in port.

The Pluton normally carries 450 mines and 400 officers and men. The number of wounded was not disclosed.

Only fragmentary information concerning the disaster could be obtained. This much was made known, French said, to counteract a report abroad that the warship was torpedoed.

The port where the explosion occurred was kept a military secret. The Pluton carries the largest number of mines of any such vessel in the French navy. She is 10 years old.

Polish Officials May Move Quarters to Paris

Cernauti, Rumania—(P)—Diplomatic circles reported today that Polish government officials plan to circle to Paris, if they are forced to flee from their country, rather than remain in Rumania and halt all political activity.

Some minor officials were said to be already on the way. Most of the officials were expected to remain in Poland as long as possible. Permission would be sought to travel across Rumania.

Polish President Ignace Moscicki and other officials were notified they must remain under surveillance and stay at selected places if they entered Rumania. Even then they would be urged to leave the country as quickly as possible.

Many of the officials were reported residing in a little village just across the Dniester river from the Rumanian frontier.

Telephone Rate Case May Go to High Court

Madison—(P)—Harold M. Wilkie, counsel for the public service commission, studied today the possibility of an appeal to the United States Supreme court in the Wisconsin telephone rate case.

The state supreme court yesterday denied a rehearing in the suit in which the commission sought to enforce a permanent reduction of $863,000 annually in exchange rates and an interim order cutting the utility's rates $1,017,717 from Aug. 5, 1934 to Aug. 4, 1935.

On July 11 the court held the rate orders were "unreasonable and unlawful," but sustained the commission's ruling reducing the depreciation rate $700,000 a year.

The commission then asked for a review of the rate decisions.

Budapest Report Says Polish Defenders of Warsaw, Lwow Have Driven Back Besiegers

Budapest—(P)—Hungarian diplomatic and press circles today received reports the Polish defenders of Warsaw and Lwow had pushed back their besiegers, inflicting severe losses on the German forces.

Although Warsaw and Lwow were holding out against ceaseless hammering of Nazi planes, artillery and tanks, reports from numerous sources said, the German lines had been extended 110 miles east of the Polish capital to Brest-Litovsk.

The newspaper Pesti Hirlap reported German forces west of Warsaw had sustained considerable losses from a Polish counter-attack and that skirmishes were continuing on the city's eastern side.

French news agency reports said heavy German attacks were repulsed at Vola, a Warsaw suburb, with the loss of some artillery and mechanized equipment.

Hungarian reports said there was little aerial raiding over Warsaw and Lwow. They said most German air activity was confined to scouting operations.

Say Nazis Beaten Back
The Hungarian news agency declared German forces attacking Lwow, Poland's third largest city, had been beaten back.

The Polish Telegraph agency declared the Poles had captured 13,000 men and 350 officers, mostly aviators, 48 guns, 215 machine guns, 170 tanks, 1,000 armored cars and 280 planes.

The Warsaw Radio Station No. 2 went off the air "due to technical difficulties." Warsaw's Station No. 1 stopped broadcasting for the same reasons last week.

The smashing German drive through southeast Poland to cut off the Poles from Rumania continued while refugees kept on streaming toward the frontier.

The Rumanian government worked to establish refugee camps. The Hungarian news agency said Bucharest expected to receive an official Polish appeal to admit refugees.

Diplomats fleeing from Poland said the German southern offensive was being accelerated by vast numbers of reserves pouring from Germany.

Upholds Gift Tax Levy of $21,600

Judge Says Conversion of
$270,000 Into Silver
Doesn't Alter Case

Milwaukee—(P)—A gift tax levy of $21,469 on $270,000 all in silver dollars—weighing 7½ tons—was upheld yesterday by Circuit Judge Charles L. Aarons.

The money was given by George D. Van Dyke, Milwaukee attorney, to his daughter, Mrs. Louise Van Dyke Baughman, and his grand daughter, Louise Lawrence Van Dyke, both of Milwaukee.

In June, 1935, the elder Van Dyke converted $270,000 of United States Liberty bonds into silver dollars, the coins being placed in trust at the First National bank of Chicago.

The money never was transported to Wisconsin, and the Van Dykes and the first Wisconsin Trust company trustees, claimed that as assignors of incomes John H. Leenhouts could not levy the tax.

The state tax commission upheld Leenhouts on a previous appeal, and the matter then was taken before Judge Aarons. He held that the conversion of bonds into silver was "a mere device" to create a trust fund for the beneficiaries, and was not germane to the gift.

Judge Aarons held also that since the fund was converted into securities or unchangeable property, that property is taxable by the state wherein the beneficiaries reside.

'Excellent' Hunting Forecast In Non-Migratory Game Bird - And Animal Areas of Midwest

Washington—(P)—The American Wildlife Institute, concluding a survey of the United States, reported today that "excellent" hunting conditions will prevail on non-migratory game birds and animals this year.

While reporting the general trend of all species of non-migratory game birds and animals is upward, Michigan conditions were given especial mention.

"In Michigan it is believed there is to be the best season on ruffed grouse, prairie chickens, sharp-tail and pheasants that has been experienced in several years," the institute said.

The institute said in Wisconsin observers flatly predict the state will experience the "best hunting in the past ten years."

Wisconsin expected a 100 per cent increase in the bag of ruffed,

SUCCUMBS TODAY

William B. Montgomery, 606 S. Mueller street, electrical superintendent of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company and prominent in civic affairs for many years, died at 10 o'clock this morning. He was active in the Masonic lodge and a past president of the Lions club.

W. B. Montgomery, Official of Power Company, Is Dead

Was Prominent in Appleton Civic Affairs for Many Years

William B. Montgomery, 53, superintendent of the electrical department of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, died at 10 o'clock this morning in Appleton following a paralytic stroke earlier this week.

Mr. Montgomery, who lived at 606 S. Mueller street, had worked for the power company for more than 20 years. He was prominent in civic affairs in the city.

Born in Appleton Aug. 13, 1886, he worked in Manitowish for a time and then moved to Kaukauna where he was superintendent of that city's electrical and water department. He returned to Appleton in 1919 to enter the employ of what was then the Wisconsin Light and Traction company. He became a "veteran" of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company last year, a title given to employees with 20 years service.

He was past commander of Appleton Commandery, Knights Templar, a member of Waverly lodge, F. and A. M., former president of the Appleton Lions club, and a member of All Saints Episcopal church. During the World war, he was a recruiting officer at Kaukauna.

Survivors are the widow; one daughter, Jane; one son, William, Jr., Appleton; one brother, Richard, Portland, Ore.; one sister, Mrs. Jack Welch, Appleton.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Westminster funeral home with the Rev. William J. Spicer in charge. Burial will be in Appleton Highland Memorial park. The body will be at the funeral home from 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon to the hour of services.

Fall Opening Hits
Full Stride Today

New Merchandise, Cooler
Weather Bring Out
Shopping Crowds

Appleton's fall opening, which bumped into an unprecedented heat wave Thursday and Friday, swept into full stride today as the combination of cooler temperatures and interesting new merchandise brought hundreds of shoppers into the downtown district.

Shoppers were downtown bright and early today as it became evident the searing heat wave had abated. They found store windows and counters abundantly and attractively filled with the new fall lines.

Merchants reported brisk dealings this morning and predicted next week should see a steadily mounting fall business. This week's unusually hot weather obviously retarded the usual autumn shopping.

Beginning of activities at Lawrence college coincided with the introduction by merchants of their fall merchandise.

Two Bandits Get $50 In Holdup of Tavern

Milwaukee—(P)—Two bandits yesterday obtained about $50 from a tavern operated by Ignatz Heldt, escaping after firing several shots at a pursuing motorist.

One of the men, about 45, entered the tavern while Mrs. Heldt was alone, forced her into a washroom and rifled the till. Mrs. Heldt ran into the street as the two drove away, crying that she had been held up.

H. W. Livingston, town of Lake, started in pursuit but halted when several shots were fired from the bandits' car. None took effect.

Valley Officials Watch Heil Sign Reservoir Bill

Governor Says He Believes Dam on Wolf Will Help Business

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—In the presence of a delegation of Fox river valley representatives, Governor Julius P. Heil Friday afternoon signed into law a bill granting a charter to the Wolf River reservoir company to create a flowage on the upper Wolf river for the purpose of storing the headquarters of the Wolf during spring floods for release to the lower Fox through Lake Winnebago during the summer period of low water levels.

After a conference of more than an hour with the valley representatives, the governor signed the bill which was recently passed by the legislature after a bitter battle. The signature of the governor marked a victory by industrial and municipal interests in the lower Fox over one of their own legislative representatives, Assemblyman Mark Catlin Jr. of Appleton, who had opposed the reservoir project strenuously and battled it resourcefully for several months.

Appearing before the governor were Mayor L. F. Nelson of Kaukauna; Charles Seaborn of the Thiha Pulp and Paper company, one of the principal backers of the reservoir project; Elmer R. Honkamp, eighth district Republican chairman; W. U. Gallaher, superintendent of the Appleton water department; Senator Mike Mack of Shiocton, who introduced the bill in the senate early in the session and steered it through the upper house; William J. Gantner, assemblyman from the Second Outagamie county district who fought his Republican colleague, Catlin, for several weeks on the issue; Harry Brooks, secretary of the Wolf River Reservoir company which was organized to build the dam, and T. E. Orison, Appleton engineer who has worked with the promoters of the project.

World Help Business
The delegates said that they explained the reservoir project in detail, and that after their explanations the governor declared that he decided to sign the bill because he was convinced it would help business in the Fox river valley.

Heil was reported as saying that Assemblyman Catlin had visited him earlier this week to ask him to veto the measure.

Seaborn, who has appeared for the bill at several hearings, said that "we are naturally pleased at our success. We have been working on this for four years."

He added that financing of the project would begin immediately. The Wolf river company has completed organization, but no stocks have yet been sold. Applications will immediately be made to the federal power commission, the war department, the public service commission, and the state conservation commission, all agencies having regulatory powers on power and water in the Fox river valley.

Heil said that the dam at Lily in Langlade county.

He doubted that all the formalities could be completed soon enough to allow completion of the dam next year, and said that it was unlikely that the project would be in full operation until the 1941 season. An effort would be made, he said, to facilitate work so that the reservoir may operate to release additional water to the Fox for the benefit of water power users there next summer, he added.

'Lost Army' Faces Attack of Nazis In Kutno Region

Warsaw, were reported taken. The communists said German planes had destroyed Polish transports east of Warsaw.

On the western front, the high command announced, activity was limited to the region around Saarbrücken. It was admitted that the city, whose residents have moved, was under German artillery fire.

Local advances by the French were reported repulsed.

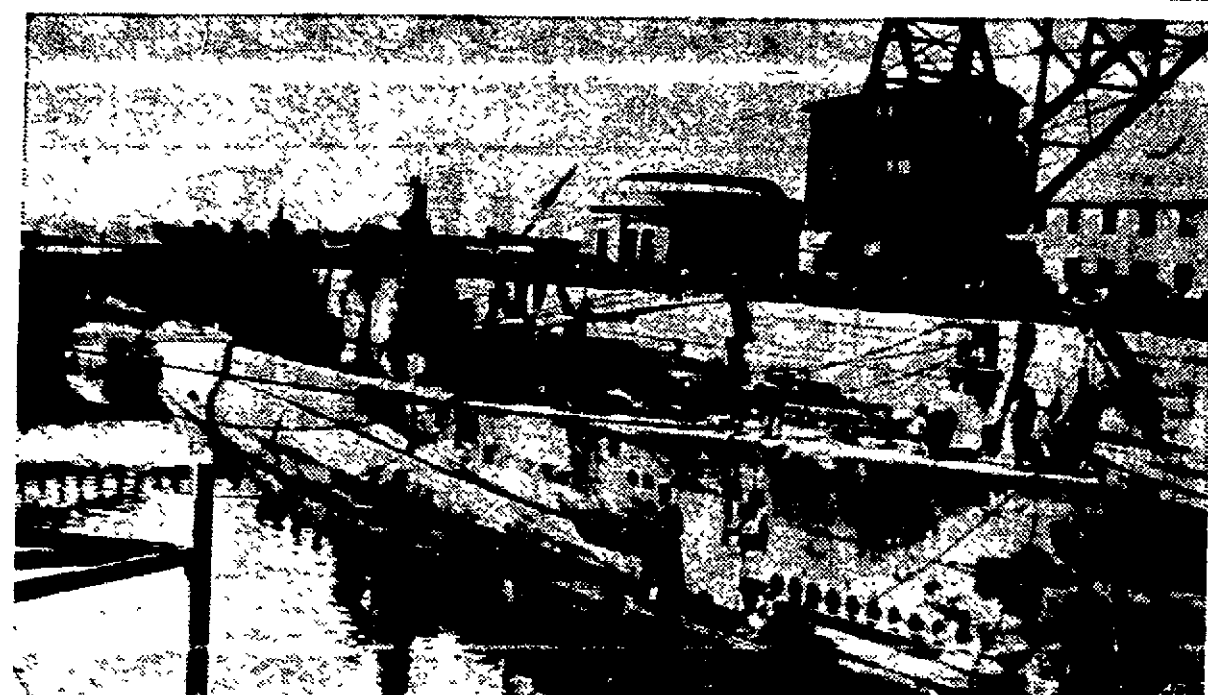

In Berlin, midday editions of the German press had banner lines on the argument between Russia and Japan to halt frontier fighting and to arbitrate. The stories recalled a statement by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop that the non-aggression pact between Germany and Russia would lead in turn to an understanding between the Soviet government and Japan.

Talk of possible peace efforts by Premier Mussolini was given impetus by the return to Berlin of the Italian ambassador, Bernardo Attolico, who earlier in the week made a flying visit to Rome after conferring with Nazi State Secretary Baron Ernst von Weizsäcker.

Some diplomats expressed belief "something was in the wind," but saw small hope for success of any peace move at the present time.

Two are Sentenced For Chicken Thefts
Waupaca—Judge Herman J. Severson on Friday sentenced Arthur Keup and Martin Luther, both of the town of Dupont, to from one to two years in the penitentiary at Waupun for stealing chickens. Sentence was begun immediately.

Severe Battle Is Raging Along Western Front

sell the valley last Sunday in which the French were forced to give up some 500 yards of German territory.

A general staff communiqué this morning reported "some progress" east of the Moselle river, apparently indicating French troops had advanced toward Trier after five days of fighting to push their positions forward.

The communiqué said German artillery action against the French front lines south of Saarbrücken had caused an "excited night" on the western front.

Near the Luxembourg boundary, French dispatches reported French reinforcements moving up through the muddy countryside under fire from heavy German guns attempting to break up French concentrations at that westernmost end of a 40-mile front extending eastward along the German-French border to Saarbrücken.

Saar Area Surrounded
Saarbrücken, industrial center of Germany's rich Saar valley, was reported being surrounded by French forces. French guns were said to dominate the area, forcing to a standstill mining operations which supply a considerable percentage of the coal, coke and iron needed for the German war machine.

French dispatches acknowledged the going being tough. Every conquered position has been taken first by a tank crew, they said, and has had to be widened and protected on all flanks before it has been possible to move men up.

German artillery constantly sought to break up French rear guard convoys and yesterday the Germans introduced low flying aerial attack. French pursuit planes, however, roared out from air dromes behind France's Maginot line and fought off the German ships. The French described their losses as slight and the enemy's as "heavy."

Military observers here saw a two-fold objective in the German tactics: first, to extract heavy losses as possible before the French were able to reach the more formidable main Siegfried line in large bodies and, second, to delay the French advance in the hope a crushing blow soon may be delivered to Poland in the east.

A completed campaign in Poland, they pointed out, would release Germany's full power to face the combined strength of British and French forces in the west.

Wolf River Dam Bill Becomes Law

Heil Signs Measure Creating Reservoir in Langlade County

Madison—(P)—Governor Heil signed late yesterday a bill permitting construction of a dam on the Wolf river and creation of a reservoir near Lily, Langlade county.

The Wolf River Reservoir company is authorized to construct the dam and control flowage on both Wolf and Fox rivers. The pond to be created by the dam will cover thousands of acres.

The company, subject to public service commission approval, may assess tolls against benefitting water users in the case of the Chipewewa and Flambeau, and the Wisconsin River Valley Improvement companies.

Project supporters declared more sanitary river conditions would result, and that floods could be better controlled and fish life improved. Originally the bill called for a series of dams, but after objections in the assembly the project was surveyed and the single site at Lily was approved.

Industrial Injury Cases are Increasing

Madison—(P)—The industrial commission said today injury cases reported under the workmen's compensation law were increasing at a faster rate than employment in Wisconsin factories.

In August, of 2,249 injuries occurred during a new monthly high since November, 1937. For the first eight months of the year, 14,175 cases were listed, the lowest since 1934.

The commission explained that many new employees may be out of practice or wholly inexperienced in the work assigned to them.

Cooperative Timber Agreement For Woodlot North of Chilton

Chilton—The first cooperative farm timber inventory agreement with the state conservation department in the history of Wisconsin was signed recently by Miss Agnes C. of this county, who has a 40-acre woodlot on her farm north of Chilton.

The agreement is a new type of service offered to Wisconsin farmers who have standing timber left and wish to derive an income from the timber but at the same time want to keep their woodlot in continuous production. Miss Goff's arrangement with the conservation department was made through A. L. McMahon, county agent, and F. B. Trenk of the state college of agriculture.

Under the arrangement a free inventory of the woods is made by a qualified forester, the owner cannot use the woods for pasture, and must harvest certain trees specified under the agreement. The woodlots are free from taxation although the owner may sell or use the wood derived from the woodlot.

Under the setup state foresters mark or blaze trees 15 inches in diameter or more for cutting. The trees are blazed in a manner to allow young stock to grow.

The inventory, taken on the Goff lot by M. J. Williamson, state forester, showed a total of 446 sugar maple trees, ranging from 13 to more than 25 inches in diameter. They were estimated to contain 116,233 board feet, or a net of 104,628 board feet, after allowing 10 per cent for cull.

William found 90,000 board feet of basswood, 61,000 of American elm, 4,321 of white ash, 15,000 of red maple trees, ranging from 13 to more than 25 inches in diameter. In the woods there are 106 American elm trees measuring 23 inches in diameter on the stump. Williamson found one elm measuring 58 inches on the stump and a majestic giant over 150 years old.

OPPOSE CHANGE Grand Rapids—United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) said today he would oppose any proposal to change provisions of the existing neutrality act.

"I do not believe America can be an arsenal for one belligerent," he said in an address prepared for delivery before a western Michigan Republican rally, "without ultimately becoming a target for the other."

The senior Michigan senator and member of the senate foreign relations committee said that in 1937 "while we could still think objectively upon the subject" congress adopted a neutrality code which he said "represented our best thought as to what would be best for America in the event of another foreign war."

Not Neutrality
"In my view," he said, "it is not 'neutrality' for us to change that code today to make it fit some favored belligerent, no matter what our sympathies. In my view, that is half in this war, and yet to safely half out. I do not believe there can be any such middle ground."

"Therefore, I favor the maintenance of the neutrality code, so that we shall be wholly neutral so long as we are neutral at all. And, barring direct challenge to our own sovereignty, I believe it is vital that we should remain neutral; first, for the sake of our own peace, second, so that there may remain at least one powerful voice in this chaotic world which may always be eligible to speak to all belligerents at all times in behalf of the humanities and in behalf of peace-with-reason at the earliest appropriate moment."

Heat Retreats As Wind Shifts

Baraboo and Monroe were closed. Classes were dismissed early in several other communities.

At Baraboo, School Superintendent Gordon J. Weston ordered suspension of classwork at noon and invited the entire student body to a swimming party at the municipal pool. Physical education teachers, aided by other instructors expert in swimming, took charge.

The huge shade trees on the school lawn were the haven of Rosendale pupils. Classes were held under the trees.

It got so warm in Mayville, Ky., yesterday that a heat-expanded football burst in the last minute of play in a high school game.

Ohio, counting on predicted possible showers by tomorrow, reported the sizzling temperatures had caused water shortages in rural areas. Yesterday's unofficial top for the state was 104 at Springfield.

Highest and lowest temperatures reported in the last 24 hours at official weather stations: Cleveland and St. Louis 101, Yellowstone 34.

DRUNK SENTENCED
Ray Steffen, 43, 1305 S. Pierce avenue, pleaded guilty of drunkenness and was fined $10 and costs with an alternative of 30 days in the county detention camp when he appeared before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. Steffen, who was arrested by city police, indicated he would serve out his term.

Britain Blames Reich in Sinking Of Belgian Ship

Third English Vessel Sunk Within Slightly Over 12 Hours

London—(P)—Great Britain today officially held Germany to blame for the sinking of a Belgian motorship in the English channel last night, either by mine or torpedo.

Within a few hours after the ministry of information issued a communiqué to that effect, news was received of the sinking of a third British vessel within little more than twelve hours.

The 8,825-ton tanker Cheyenne, owned by the Anglo-American Oil company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was sunk by a German submarine off the southwest coast of Ireland. Crews and passengers of all vessels were reported rescued.

Crewmen of the Cheyenne—the twenty-first British ship to go down in the war—were picked up by the Norwegian ship Ida Baake, making its second rescue of the war. They declared the attacking submarine fired first warning shots and sank the vessel after the men were in lifeboats.

Then the submarine stood by until the Ida Baake hove to several hours later. They said the submarine commander had offered to tow the lifeboats toward the coast.

Captain's Report
The Belgian vessel sunk off the Shalgh Lightship near Weymouth was the 5,043-ton motorship Alex Van Opstal. While the ministry of information said the sinking was the result of "enemy action," the captain said:

"All I know is there was a terrific explosion and the ship broke in two."

The eight passengers and crew of 49 got away safely in the vessel's lifeboats and were picked up by the Greek steamer Atlantico and brought ashore on the south coast of England.

The other British vessels sunk were the 5,200-ton cargo boat Fanad Head and the 291-ton trawler Davara.

These sinkings followed by a few hours a government announcement that "a number of U-boats" had been destroyed by war vessels and planes and that the British were stepping up preparations for a protracted war.

Blame German
The ministry's statement argued that the mine—if that was the cause of the sinking—must have been laid by the enemy because of the assertion that at no time have the British laid mines in the vicinity of the sinking.

The communiqué said "by either method of sinking the enemy has violated international law."

"If the cause of the sinking was a mine," it continued, "the minefield had not been notified, and if a torpedo the act was an infraction of the submarine protocol to which Germany had adhered."

British naval experts said the losses at sea were not exceedingly great in view of the large number of unprotected British vessels on the seas when war was declared.

On the whole, they said, naval activity so far has been heavily in Britain's favor. The following reasons were cited:

1. Britain's drive against submarines has been much more effective than during the first two weeks of the world war, when only one U-boat was sunk.

2. Britain already has driven virtually all German shipping off the seas and during the first week of the war seized more than 76,000 tons of contraband cargo bound for Germany on neutral vessels.

There was no loss of life on the two British vessels sunk last night. The ministry of information disclosed that military organization was progressing "much faster" than in 1914 and that mobilization of the nation's industries for a long war was proceeding rapidly.

Offer Testimony in Trial of Two Indians
Superior—(P)—Government attorneys prosecuting the case of Jerry Pero, 40, and Paul Moore, 39, charged with murder, introduced testimony and exhibits yesterday to tend to show that the two were residents of Odanah and were certified Indians.

Pero and Moore were convicted in state court at Ashland 12 years ago on a charge of slaying W. F. Marks, Odanah druggist. Two years ago their claim they should have been tried in federal court was upheld.

U. S. District Attorney John J. Boyle and his assistant, Alvin M. Loured, presented a petition purportedly signed by Pero and Moore, when they made a plea on a writ of habeas corpus, claiming they were Odanah Indians.

Early witnesses before the federal jury were Jerod Day, former Ashland county surveyor, and Wallace McDonald, field agent for the Great Lakes Indian Agency.

Catholics Will Pray For Peace of World

Madison—(P)—A tri-county rally of Catholics to pray for world peace will be held tomorrow at East Bristol, northeast of here, under the guidance of Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch of the Milwaukee diocese. The fourth of its kind conducted by Archbishop Stritch recently, it will include Catholics from Dane, Columbia, and Dodge counties.

Appleton High School Students Join Activities Finance Plan

More than 1,150 students have joined the activities finance plan of Appleton High school, according to Miss Hilda Harm, secretary. She expects the total, however, to more than meet the 1,200 mark when the final tally is taken.

Each student in the high school is privileged to join the finance plan by paying $5 for the entire school year or 15 cents for 35 weeks. In return for this investment he receives admission to all home athletic and forensics contests, the weekly paper, the annual and yearbook numbers. Fees are collected each Tuesday in the home rooms by the student councilors.

Throughout the week home rooms have been conducting elections for councilors and assistants to represent the groups in the student council and help in administering the finance plan. Home room 231 elected Ann Smith councilor and Don Strutz, assistant; 234, Betty Van Gorp and Margaret Ulrich; 240, Richard Wiese and Frances Wheeler, councilors, and Jean Watson, assistant; 306, Ellen Arnold and David Bliss; 314, Pat Connolly and Virginia Burke; 315, Bill Farquhar and Russell Dohr; 318, Don Heinritz and John Hammer; 326, Ralph Junge and Paul Kleist.

More Councilors
333, Marguerite Kotz and Bob Koehnke; 339, Joe Marston and Rosemary McCann; 344, Amy O'Neil and Bill Mullen; 347, Harold Phillips and Tom Reider; 352, Bob Sager and Jeanne Ruhling; 353, Frank Sprister and Don Smith; 356, Russell Volkman and Alice Uimen; 248, Harold Weston, councilor; 249, Weisgerber, councilors; 249, Margaret Roban and Bob Wilch, assistants; 104, Ed Blackman and Bob Balliet; 105, Bob Connolly and Ralph Buesing.

106, Inez Endter and Bid Drier; 113, David Gallaher and June Femal; 114, Guenther Holtz and Dolores Horrig; 115, Roger Kirkeide and Joyce Ressler; 116, Thomas Leeter and Sheldon Leister; 123, Robert T. Miller and Dan Moser; 244, Clifford Nelson and James Ostereich; 159, Margaret Roban and Robert Raschig; 162, Louis Straite and Virginia Schub; 163, Grace Slattery and Ruth Steidel; 183, Audrey Williams and Earl Wenzel; 204, Dorothy Bailey and Fred Acheson; 205, Bill Burton and Robert Bowers; 208, Bill De Long and Eunice De West; 215, Jim Germanson and Bill Ferron; 216, Anthony Groh and Elizabeth Haug.

The first meeting of the student body was held Friday and new members received their instructions.

CIO-UAWA Wins In Briggs Vote
Selected as Bargaining Agent Over A. F. of L. Organization

Detroit—(P)—The C.I.O. United Automobile Workers said today its overwhelming victory over the A. F. of L. United Automobile Workers in an election at the Briggs Manufacturing company was "a conclusive answer that the U.A.W.-C.I.O. speaks for the auto workers."

In seven plants of the company, which makes automobile bodies, the U.A.W.-C.I.O. received 13,301 votes; the U.A.W.-A. F. of L. 1,052, and 978 employees voted for neither union as their sole collective bargaining agent.

The election was conducted by the National Labor Relations board Thursday and the ballots were counted late yesterday.

The only close voting was at the Briggs plant in Evansville, Ind. The result there was 655 votes for the C.I.O. and 524 for the A. F. of L. The C.I.O. polled approximately 90 per cent of the votes cast in the six plants here. There were 21,000 workers eligible to vote.

The U.A.W.-C.I.O. won five other recent elections in automobile and aircraft plants here and R. J. Thomas, president of the union, predicted the same outcome Sept. 27 when the NLRB conducts a poll of approximately 60,000 Chrysler corporation employees.

The U.A.W.-A. F. of L., which made a futile eleventh-hour attempt to withdraw its name from the Briggs ballot, has indicated it may do so in the Chrysler election.

Vocational Heads End Parley Today
Hambrecht, Lasher Speak At Closing Sessions Of Conference

Members of the Wisconsin Vocational Directors' association closed their Appleton conference at noon today after 2 1/2 days of discussing and studying administrative matters.

George P. Hambrecht, state vocational director, and John Lasher, state N.Y.A. director, were speakers at the closing session this morning in the Conway hotel.

About 65 delegates attended the conference banquet last night at the Riverview Country club. Earl Bowler, Rhinelander, secretary-treasurer of the association, acted as toastmaster, introducing Orval Olson, Antigo, newly elected president. Herb Heilig, Appleton Vocational school director, was chairman for the banquet.

The Appleton High school string ensemble entertained at last night's dinner.

WPA Rolls in State Show Big Decrease

Washington—(P)—The Works Projects Administration disclosed today its rolls in Wisconsin were reduced to 42,521 on Sept. 6, a drop of 1,071 from Aug. 30.

Nationally, total enrollment Sept. 6 was 1,660,537, a reduction of 180,055 in the first week of September.

Michigan employment on Sept. 6 was 81,648, a drop of 4,560. Minnesota enrollment was 34,483, a drop of 3,649.

British Liner in Port at New York With 1,625 Aboard

669 Passengers are Americans; Many Criticize Kennedy

New York—(P)—The British liner Aquitania, the first armed merchantman of a belligerent nation to reach New York since the European war started, arrived today with 1,625 passengers, 669 of them Americans.

Their nerves were ragged after the cautious crossing and many of the Americans expressed resentment over a warning they said Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy had sent them before the ship sailed. The message, said Gilbert Miller, theatrical producer, "scared the gizzard out of us."

The Cunard liner's after deck was cleared for action the day before she sailed. About 100 feet of railing was removed at the stern and two 12-pounders were mounted, one on either side.

The ship had a destroyer convoyed for one day and then sailed alone. Miller said G. K. Donald, American consul at Southampton, summoned the Americans to the lounge just before sailing and read this message from Ambassador Kennedy:

Kennedy Statement
"Ambassador Kennedy feels that in addition to the other statements he has made, it is his duty to warn American citizens taking passage on vessels of belligerent nations that when such vessels are being conveyed, the opposing belligerent may take this opportunity to sink them without warning. This does not mean that conveyed vessels are more unsafe than unconvoyed vessels, but it is made purely to acquaint American passengers with the contingencies that might arise."

The Italian liner Rex, first Italian vessel to sail into New York harbor since the war began, arrived carrying 1,820 passengers. 1,454 of them Americans.

Among the passengers were James H. R. Cromwell and his wife, the former Doris Duke; Archbishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland; Giovanni Martinelli, the operative tenor; Monsignor Alexander Szyki, a professor at the Polish seminary, Orchard Lakes, Mich., and 12 Chester Hale girls—members of a dancing troupe which was stranded for a while on the Riviera.

The Rex sailed from Genoa Sept. 8 and from Naples the following day.

Outlines Plans For Cigaret Tax

Roach Says Officers Will Concentrate Efforts On Dealers

Madison—(P)—John Roach, director of the beverage tax division charged with the administration of the state's new 2 cents a package cigarette levy, indicated today his inspectors and enforcement officers would concentrate on wholesalers, jobbers and retailers.

"It would be humanly impossible to check on every consumer," he said, adding his division would "collect the tax" and "assist and educate" the public about the law.

The cigarette tax is scheduled to go into effect Tuesday night after Governor Heil signs the administration's $10,200,000 revenue bill. The measure also reenacts the 60 per cent income surtax to raise $4,800,000 for the biennium.

The law will also place an import of one-half cent on books of 50 or less cigarette papers, one cent for books containing between 50 and 100 papers, and another half cent for every additional 50 papers or fractional part thereof.

Sherman, Former Illinois Senator, Is Dead In Florida

Daytona Beach, Fla.—(P)—Lawrence Yates Sherman, 80, former United States senator from Illinois, died here last night where he had lived quietly since retiring from active life more than five years ago.

He had been in failing health for some time.

Sherman, who was Illinois' "favorite son" candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1916, entered the United States senate March 26, 1913, in place of William Lorimer, who had been unseated. In 1915 he was elected to a full six-year term.

He left the senate in March, 1921, and moved to Florida several years later where he became a banker and practiced law.

Two New London Bowling Loops in Preliminary Tilts

Arnold Zitske Cracks High Count for Evening With 534 Total

New London — Uncommon heat failed to ease the impatience of New London bowlers to try Frab's new alleys and two leagues launched preliminary matches last night. The Plywood rolled four quints and plan to have two more ready for next Friday and the Lutheran men's club let go with all six squads on deck.

Arnold Zitske cracked the high for the evening with a 534 series and collected a 200 game while Lewis Sawall broke 200 for high single. Sawall's Five in the Men's club league piled up high total of 2,283 and Ed's Reds of the Plywood posted an 821 game for the season's first efforts.

Regularly scheduled leagues will roll over the alleys next week with the Goodfellowship and Lions club loops starting Monday evening.

Definite team line-ups showing last night were:

Plywood League
Hanks Dodgers, J. I. Felsner, Ben Bessette, Hank Bessette, Glen Hall, Ed Stern, Sr.; Eds Reds, Elroy Stern, Alex Luft, C. Krohn, Pete Westphal, Ed Surprise; Urbans Cubs, Ralph Impleman, Melvin Huntley, Dick Cole, Eugene Furman, Arnold Zitske, Krohn's Reds, Albert Platte, Wilmer Graichen, Wallace Shirland, Clinton Platte, Gilbert Kroll.

Men's Club
Meshke's Five, Otto Maertz, the Rev. W. E. Pankow, Frank Huebner, Leo Meshke, William Breitenfeldt; Lippold's Five, Henry Lippold, Arnold Schmidt, Don Stern, Harland Schmidt, Roy Queeman; Boese's Five, Rudy Floetz, Art Schmidt, Ralph Restle, Al Hand-schke, Ben Boese; Sawall's Five, John Restle, Len Fasher, Milton Schroeder, Dr. M. A. Borchardt, Lewis Sawall; Krueger's Five, George Krueger, Gerhard Felsner, Harold Steingraber, Harold Pieper, Arnold Kopitzke; Marzink's Five, Henry Marzink, Otto Lemke. The latter two teams rolled warm-up matches as Marzink's squad still needs men.

Last night the Reds beat the Dodgers two and the Bees took two games from the Cubs. Sawalls won two over Boeses and Lippolds scored twice over Meshkes.

Probe Is Launched In Fatal Accident

Coroner's Jury Adjourns After Viewing Body Of Gustave Gall

New London — A coroner's jury adjourned indefinitely here Friday afternoon after viewing the body of Gustave Gall, 67, Hortonville, and questioning authorities concerning the accident which proved fatal to Gall Thursday evening when his jugular vein was cut in the crash of an auto driven by Arthur Hoffman, town of Hortonville, four miles south of New London on Highway 45.

Jurors drawn from Third ward residents to conduct the inquest were A. G. VanAlstine, William Kalwitz, Lester Sawall, Ethelma Furman, Martin Beckman and Clarence Guthrie. Meeting with the jury were Sheriff John Lappen and District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr of Outagamie county.

Funeral services for the victim will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Fehrman-Kircher Funeral home by the Rev. R. R. Holliday of the Methodist church. Burial will be in Floral Hill cemetery. The body will be at the funeral home until the hour of services.

1940 Is Leap Year So Girl Is Elected Junior Class Chief

New London — Because 1940 will be leap year and the class president automatically becomes leader of the junior promenade, the Junior class elected a girl president Friday afternoon to be prom queen. Genevieve Close was named. Eva Mae Schmidt was voted vice president. Robert Kohl secretary, and Joyce Prah treasurer. Faculty advisers are Victor Gimmedast, Miss Alice Goodrich and Miss Alma Halverson.

William Schmidt was elected president of the Senior class Friday afternoon with Lois Palmer vice president. Alice Babcock secretary and Donald Huber treasurer. Faculty advisers are A. A. Vorba, Miss Anne Halsor and Norman Pronold.

Organize First Student Council

Lyle Quant, Senior, Is Named President of High School Group

New London — Organization of the first student council at Washington High school was completed Friday with the election of representatives by 12 school organizations and election of council officers.

A delegate is still to be selected by the freshman class. Lyle Quant, senior, was elected president; Wallace Hammerberg, senior, vice president; and William Krause, senior, secretary-treasurer.

E. N. Calef, economics instructor, is faculty advisor. A constitution drawn by a skeleton council during the summer was ratified unanimously by the student body on Thursday. The group will grant or revoke charters and ratify constitutions of all school clubs and organizations and sponsor and regulate all school activities.

Any club or organization must have at least 10 members to be represented on the council and must have a faculty sponsor. The council will meet every two weeks. Any decision it may make may be vetoed by the superintendent or principal.

James Cottrill Is Named President of Church Men's Club

New London — James Cottrill was elected new president of the Methodist Men's club at a meeting at the church Thursday night to succeed Henry Christensen. William Sager was named vice president and Phil Court secretary. L. C. Lowell was reelected treasurer and Frank Beckman was voted program chairman. The program for the year was discussed.

Three Sisters Give Party in Honor of Mrs. Wilbur Jeffers

New London — Three sisters of Mrs. Wilbur Jeffers entertained over 30 guests in honor of the latter at her home at 114 E. Cook street Thursday evening. Trend to Return To International Law Seen in U. S.

President Never Did Favor Present Neutrality Statute—Lawrence

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The trend here now is to get back to international law. The controversy over amending the neutrality law has reached the point where one side says it was unilateral to put on the embargo in the first place, and the other side says it is unilateral to make any changes now.

President Roosevelt never did favor the present law, even though he signed it as a compromise measure and to avoid further bickering about international affairs at the time. The department of state has stood steadfastly for the principle that the president of the United States under the constitution should retain discretionary power to conduct the foreign relations of the government in 1937, Senator Borah himself was among those who supported an amendment to give the president discretionary power to decide whether or not to apply the cash and carry proposal when it was offered in the senate in 1937.

Mr. Roosevelt, on signing the present neutrality law, which was first adopted in August, 1935, in the closing days of a session when adequate debate was curtailed because of the threats of a filibuster, said in a public statement that the wholly inflexible arms embargo meeting will be conducted by the pastor.

A social and business meeting of the official church board will be held at the Methodist church Tuesday evening. A 6:30 pot-luck supper will be held, followed by a business session.

go provisions "might have exactly the opposite effect from that which was intended. In other words, the inflexible provisions might drag us into war instead of keeping us out."

The president, therefore, though accepting the patchwork legislation because he could not help matters then, pointed out how dangerous it would be to apply the statute in critical situations. Subsequent legislative debates turned on the idea that America would be kept out of war if more and more restrictive law were adopted. This view has been persistently opposed by Secretary Hull. Many Republican authorities on internal questions have taken the position that the department of state is right about it and has been all along.

Present Legislation

The impetus for the present neutrality legislation arose out of the investigation by the senate munitions committee, at whose hearings in 1934 it was sought to prove that President Wilson yielded to the importunities of the war profiteers and led the American nation to war to save Wall street's investments. This sort of argument up to that time came only from the socialists, who have been trying to smear every administration as "upper-capitalistic," but, when United States senators, though in the minority, adopted that view, a public sentiment was created which those who knew the facts about America's entry into the war did not take the time or trouble to refute, even though it was an absurdity to them.

Today the results of letting the erroneous impressions spread by the senate munitions committee stand without protest are apparent in the propaganda widely circulated that money alone brings on wars. The possibility that the ambition of dictators, and their cruel tactics in threatening or using force may have had something to do with the start of wars was not admitted to be in any sense controlling. Now that a European war has been begun as a consequence of a plain act of aggression by Hitler and a refusal to negotiate peace except on a basis of complete surrender, the world knows that the causes assigned by the senate munitions committee have been proved wrong, and that wars come for reasons other than the protection of munitions makers or investors.

Neutrality Rights

Mr. Roosevelt, in discussing current neutrality issues with the press this week, advised that the newspaper correspondents read international law cases for the last 100 years as compiled by John Bassett Moore, the noted authority on the subject, in thick volumes used as textbooks in the colleges. There will be found a whole series of

Mrs. St. Aubin New President of St. John Church Organization

Little Chute—Mrs. Theodore St. Aubin was elected president of St. Elizabeth society of St. John church at a meeting Tuesday evening at the school hall. She will succeed Mrs. Martin Gloudehaus who held the office the last four years. Other officers who were reelected are: Mrs. Albert Van Roy, secretary and Mrs. John Vander Putten, treasurer. Mrs. Henry W. Bongers and Mrs. John A. Vanden Heuvel were appointed consultants. Fifty members attended the meeting and cards and bingo followed the business meeting. A lunch was also served. Prizes at cards were awarded Mrs. John Evers, Mrs. Chris Ebben and Mrs. Peter J. Gloudehaus.

Ambrose Van Dyke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Van Dyke and Francis Van Hoof, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Van Hoof, have left for Milwaukee to resume their studies at Marquette university.

precedents on neutral rights with reference to blockade and articles that can be confiscated. It is a matter of historical record that, originally, neutral rights were based on the theory that belligerents must confine their hostilities to their own territories or adjacent areas, but now it has swung around to the realistic conception that belligerents may fight anywhere on the seven seas and as close to any neutral country as they like, irrespective of what the neutrals think about it.

A strong assertion of the rights of neutrals may be expected from the United States, but such reaffirmation of American rights will be weakened if the congress of the United States continues to deviate in the future, as it has since 1933, from the established principles of international law and custom.

Basic Principle

The basic principle of international law is that neutrals may ship non-contraband articles and be assured of safe passage. Opinions have differed as to what is contraband, and cases carried to arbitration tribunals for damages and compensation have never accepted the doctrine that the word of a belligerent country is final on that point.

Neutrals usually insist on a wide list of articles, and belligerents insist on narrowing it, but rarely ever has any nation imposed on itself an embargo on foodstuffs and implements of war. America's 1935 position was unique and was challenged very little at the time because it was not believed a world war was forthcoming.

Issues Permits for Three New Menasha
Homes During Month

Menasha—Permits for three new dwellings have been issued in Menasha since Sept. 1 by H. O. Haugh, city building inspector. The permits bring the total number authorized so far to 41 while in the month of 1939 there were 45 new dwellings authorized.

The F. J. Durham Lumber company received a permit to construct a $3,500 dwelling on Lake street. Robert Ulrich, contractor, received permits to build two frame dwellings on Ninth street. The estimated cost of each is $2,500. Several other houses are under consideration, according to the building inspector, and a new record is expected this year in home construction.

Three other permits have been issued by the inspector since Sept. 1. Gilbert Liebhauer, 309 Second street, received a permit to construct a workshop. Clarence Jorgenson, 88 Matheson street, was authorized to construct an addition to his home. John Madigan, 359 Eighth street, received a permit authorizing him to move a boat house and remodel it into a garage.

Berlin, Not Embargo Dispute,
Holds Answer to U. S. Position

Washington—Senator Borah has outlined the ground upon which the fight will be made in congress to prevent repeal of the arms embargo. To abandon the embargo as is desired by the administration would, Senator Borah says, constitute intervention in the war. Thus he makes the issue one of intervention.

The senator refrained from mentioning nations by name, saying that the administration wished to repeal the embargo to enable this government to furnish arms to one side (Britain and France) and to withhold them from the other (Germany). "The proposal for repeal," he said, "is based upon the program of taking sides in the furnishing of arms... when we couple the repeal with the announced and declared program of furnishing arms and munitions to one side and withholding them from the other, such program will unquestionably constitute intervention in the present conflict in Europe."

This intervention to furnish arms might be followed by intervention in the forms of troops, the senator suggested.

In short, the administration is accused of proposing that the administration hold that the present law is unneutral and that true neutrality requires repeal of the embargo. The case was stated by Secretary Hull in a memorandum transmitted to congress by President Roosevelt July 14, after the senate foreign relations committee had voted to postpone consideration of neutrality revision.

Secretary Hull argues that the arms embargo interposes an artificial barrier which alters the natural positions of the present belligerents. Secretary Hull, following diplomatic usage, names no nations, but his point is that Britain and France, by controlling the seas, have a natural advantage in obtaining arms and supplies over Germany. If we have no embargo, then we have no responsibility for that difference in advantage between the two sides. But when we apply an embargo which equalizes that difference, then "the responsibility" for the condition is direct and clear," says Secretary Hull. That is unneutral interference with the natural advantage which one side possesses.

Hull, Borah Argue
Two Opposing Courses
So, in the name of neutrality, we have Secretary Hull and Senator Borah advocating opposing courses with regard to the embargo. The administration says we are interfering with regard to the embargo. The administration says we are interfering if we keep the embargo. The position says we are interfering if we repeal it.

These are both legalistic arguments. Retention of the embargo hurts Britain and France. Repeal of it would hurt Germany by giving her enemies additional access to munitions, particularly aircraft, which is what the British and French want most from the United States at the moment. We have no embargo on commodities which the British also need.

To add airplanes and military supplies to the shipments of copper and wheat does not seem a very important additional step and no different at all in principle. If we are going to be drawn into war by shipments of arms, we are as apt to be drawn in by shipments of wheat or other commodities. There seems no logical reason why the whole business should not be placed on the same footing—all on a cash and carry basis.

Thus Far No Desire To Join France, England
But logic does not always decide votes. The opposition will picture this as a step toward war and the administration will try to show that it is not. On the relative plausibility of the opposing cases public sentiment probably will take its position and congress will be moved by that, plus a good deal of underground pressure in behalf of allowing American manufacturers to enjoy the prosperity of war contracts.

As to the danger of our being involved in war, the greatest danger is not in America but in what Germany may do. Thus far there is no indication of American desire to state to war for the British and French. That attitude is not likely to be changed except by acts of Germany which would inflame American opinion to a sufficient extent. Berlin, rather than anything congress does with respect to the embargo, is the source of danger.

Twin City Deaths
JOHN G. PLANK

Neenah—John G. Plank, 63, 721 S. Commercial street, Neenah, died at 1:20 Friday afternoon after an illness of six years.

Mr. Plank, who was born June 10, 1876, in Brillion, has lived in Neenah for 20 years. He came to Neenah from Appleton where he had been foreman of the job printing department of the Appleton Crescent for about nine years. He was foreman of the printing department for the Daily News in Neenah for about seven years after moving here and then went into a partnership with Otto Jacobs in the Quality Printing company. After three years, he superintended the Kimberly-Clark corporation's Central Printing company, retiring six years ago because of ill health.

Mr. Plank was a member of St. Paul's English Lutheran church and of the church's Men's club.

Survivors are his widow, three sons, Arthur, Edward and Earl; a daughter, Mrs. Edward Gartzke, Neenah; a brother, Robert, Stevens Point; a sister, Mrs. Arthur Enderson, Milwaukee, and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be at 2:30 Sunday afternoon at St. Paul's English Lutheran church with the Rev. Samuel Roth in charge. The Rev. E. Worthington will give the sermon. Burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery. The body will be at the Sorensen Funeral home from 3 o'clock this afternoon until noon Sunday when it will be removed to the church.

K-C Office Girls Open
League Bowling Season

Neenah—The Kimberly-Clark Office Girls' Bowling league opened its season last night at Muench alleys but, because handicaps haven't been established, scores were not released. Two teams bowled last night, the Green Peppers against the Pink Elephants and the Lemon Drops against the Brown Bombers. The Grape Nuts and the Blue Bottles will roll Tuesday night.

Menasha Personals

Thomas Geibel, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Geibel, 801 Manitowish street, Menasha, underwent an emergency operation last night for appendicitis at Theda Clark hospital.

Miss Charlotte Walker, 98 Brighton beach, underwent a major operation this morning at Theda Clark hospital.

Married Men Clash With Single Members in Doubleheader Sunday

Menasha—Battery squads for the annual baseball clash between the single men and the married men of the Polish Falcon Athletic association have been announced by the managers of the respective teams. A doubleheader has been scheduled for Sunday afternoon with the first game to start at 12:30 and the second at 2:15.

Joe Omar will manage the single men in this first game. If necessary, he also will take over the catching duties but the single men also have Frank Michalkiewicz and "Doc" Gans available to work behind the plate. Pitchers will include Al Zelinski of the Falcons team in the Fox Valley league, Al Britzke and Digger Zelinski.

Ed Scovronski will manage the married men and also will do the catching. The pitching staff will include Louis Slomski, John Stutz and John Michalkiewicz.

The second game will find Wally Zelinski, Clem Teitz and Al Casey available for the hurling duties for the single men. Zelinski will manage the team. Dave Kosowski, former Falcon ace who pitched in the Kitty league this season, probably will hurl an inning or two but his brother Herbert will not catch because of his injured hand. He probably will perform in the outfield.

Student Voices Tested for Work In Choral Groups

Nearly 250 Singers are Placed in School Organizations

Menasha — With the final testing of the senior girls Glee club at Menasha High school, Franklin LeFevre, vocal music supervisor, has completed the placing of almost 250 singers from the Menasha Junior and Senior high schools in their proper voice classifications. Work in the testing program has been conducted since the opening of school.

Interest in music has grown at the high school as evidenced by the increased participation. The junior high school a cappella choir this year has 143 voices while last year there were only 110. The group sings four and six part arrangements from a wide variety of music. They meet three times a week.

The a cappella choir has 90 singers while last year there were only 50. A senior girls Glee club also has been organized with 19 members who meet five times a week and sing two and three part music. The group includes four first sopranos, six second sopranos and nine altos.

Glee Club Members
First sopranos include Marjorie Anklam, Norman Rommek, Bernyce Brizke, and Mildred Fitch. Second sopranos are Arlene Blank, Edith Forslund, Esther Kropidowski, Jean Crushinski, Rosemary Podolski and Margaret Smolinski.

Altos in the senior girls Glee club include Marie Kobinsky, Verna Burchard, Elaine Johnson, Leone Zielski, Agnes Schutkoske, Betty Gothe, Ruth Pawlowski, Mary Jane Russell and Corrine Heup.

The a cappella choir includes 12 first sopranos, 16 second sopranos, 23 altos, eight tenors, 12 first bass singers and nine second bass singers. The class already is at work preparing for an appearance at the annual Christmas concert of the Menasha High school band. The group also is preparing numbers for presentation at school assembly programs.

The personnel of the choir includes Ruth Duemke, Eileen Hecker, Shirley Hoffman, Priscilla Juk, Mildred Kersten, Virginia Kozietzke, Gloria Kutz, Arlene Parker, Dorothy Plowright, Pat Schommer, Susan Spengler and Dolores Sylwanowicz, first soprano; and Dolores Sylwanowicz, first soprano.

Second Sopranos
Second sopranos are Helen Brand, Joyce Drephal, Bonnie Franz, Marilyn Jaskolski, Dolores Jahr, Kathleen Heinz, Elaine Handler, Dolores Kurovski, Betty Keapock, Dorothy Kiszewski, Luella Marks, Johanna Porto, Dorothy Steffens, Gertrude Winarski, Betty Zimmerman and Margaret Zielski.

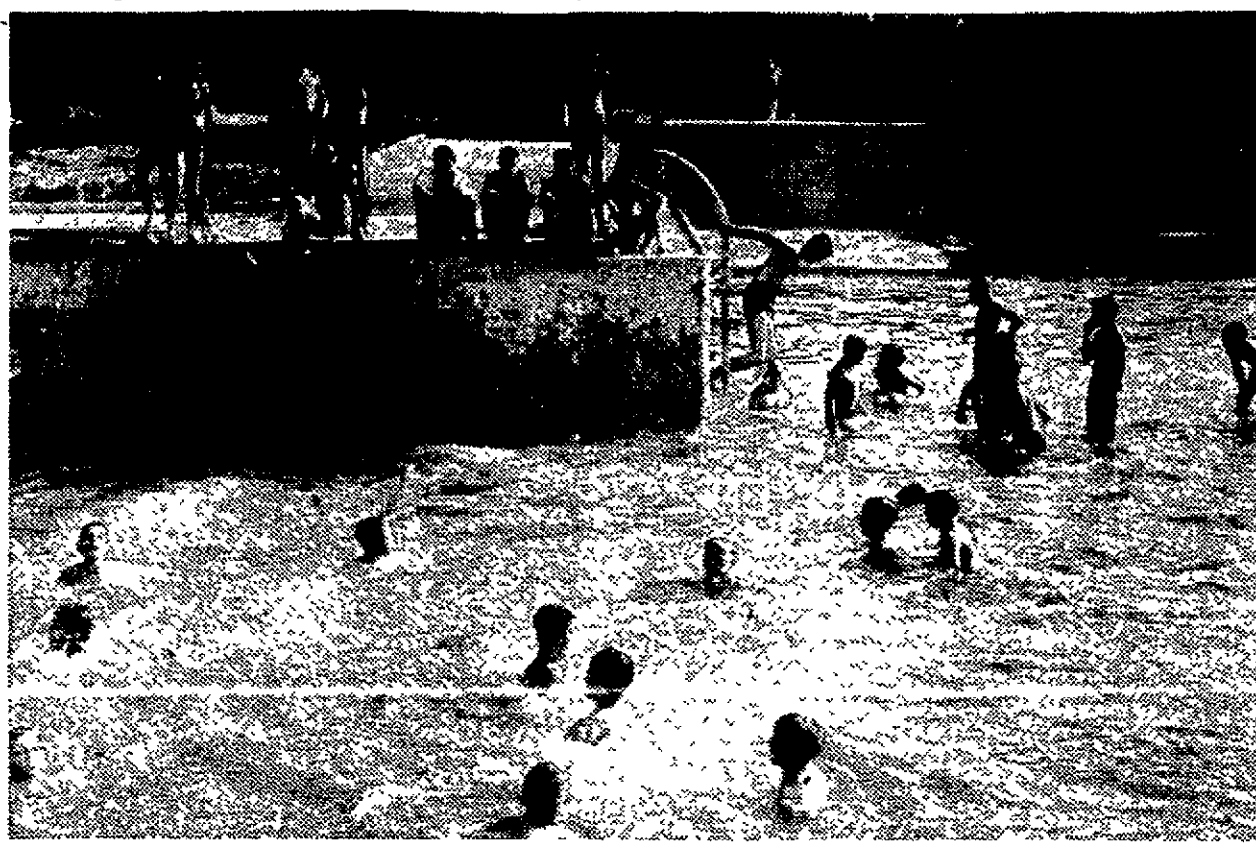

The alto section includes Amy Braxmeier, Leola Backes, Ruth Brand, Marion Booth, Mae Baerwald, Kathryn Campbell, Margaret Doyle, Louise Dorow, Virginia Funk, Melba Hess, Lucille Gatzka, Margaret Hess, Jeanette Jensen, Betty Knight, Irene Koerner, June Moran, Marcella Pozolinski, Irene Redlin, Edith Schmidtke, Ruth Schreiber, Shirley Wheeler and Pearl Watters.

Tenors include Roselyn Acker, William Dorow, Betty DuCharme, Norbert Flynn, Buddy Geibel, James Griffith, Myra Timmerman and Eugene Myers.

First bass singers are Richard Anderson, Neal Baldauf, Jack Cummerus, Richard Hoffman, Donald Jensen, Richard Novakowski, Howard Merrill, Wilber Merkley, Donald Meyer, Roland O'Brien, George Overby and James Rees.

Second bass singers are Edward Corry, Harvey Grundman, Robert Drephal, Erwin Leiss, Henry Spice, Robert Skalmoski, Henry Ostewalski, Robert Fenton and Donald Riley.

YOUNGSTERS SWARM INTO NEW POOL TO ESCAPE HEAT

Neenah—The heat wave Thursday and Friday drew rejoicing from at least some of the boys and girls in Neenah, for combined with the pouring of water in the new $150,000 swimming pool, the youngsters got in some extraordinarily late swimming. A group of boys and girls are shown above obtaining relief from the heat as well as enjoying their first dip into the new pool. The Fluor Brothers Construction company, Oshkosh, contractors for the FWA project, attempted Thursday to keep the filling of the pool secret, but one boy happened along and the news spread via the grape vine system, and more than 100 boys went swimming. Friday afternoon, the pool was overcrowded with boys and girls. Life guards, headed by Ole Jorgensen, were on hand, however, to safeguard the swimmers. (Post-Crescent Photo) vivors in the unflooded forward compartments were rescued in an escape bell soon after the Squalus sank.

Lieutenant Commander Charles B. Momsen, who played a major part in the rescue and salvage work said it was his opinion that the valve was defective.

The valve was found in the after compartments after a shipmate jammed shut a door to save the 33 who survived.

Washington — (AP) — President Roosevelt formally commended today the "devotion to duty, courage, skill, initiative and self-sacrifice" of 31 naval officers and men who salvaged the sunken submarine Squalus.

Letters of commendation were presented to several members of the salvage unit by acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison.

A separate letter was directed to Rear Admiral Cyrus W. Cole, commander of the salvage unit.

Only eight of the salvagers were present to receive the commendation from Mr. Edison. Several others were still at the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard where the sunken submarine with its cargo of dead was towed.

Legion and Auxiliary Will Meet Next Week
Kimberly — William Verhagen Post No. 80 of the American Legion and its auxiliary will hold their first meetings of the fall next week at the clubhouse. The auxiliary will meet Monday evening to elect officers.

Retiring officers are Mrs. I. C. Clark, president; Mrs. B. J. Queltte, first vice president; Mrs. Matt Busch, second vice president; Mrs. P. A. Lockschmidt, secretary; Mrs. George McElroy, treasurer; and Mrs. Walter Van Eperen, sergeant-at-arms.

The legion will meet Tuesday evening when new officers, recently installed at Seymour, will take over their duties. C. J. Fieweger is the new post commander and will succeed Leonard Goffard. George Hankwitz is the newly elected adjutant and succeeds George Gertrude. Other new officers are Matt Busch, vice commander; Dr. B. J. Queltte, finance officer; Theodore Van Zummeren, sergeant-at-arms; Ray Behling, service officer; Mike

Wading Pool Is Prepared for New Neenah Recreation Center

Neenah—A wading pool for children will be constructed at the new $150,000 swimming pool and recreation building, providing the city approves of plans which are being drawn.

The proposed wading pool will be 60 by 20 feet, and it will range in depth from 18 inches to two feet, according to the plans.

The original plans for the swimming pool and recreation building, a PWA project, called for a wading pool for children, but the wading pool plans were thrown out when the original specifications were revised.

Plans for the additional pool were being completed today by Walter Schreiber, superintendent, and they will be submitted to the city council for approval. The cost of the additional pool has not been determined as yet.

Nearly Finished
With the exception of the proposed wading pool, the project will be completed in two weeks. The contractors are waiting for the plaster in the recreation rooms to dry so that doors can be hung and painting finished and the floors installed.

Although the contract deadline for completion of the pool is Dec. 20, the contractors expect that the job will be done, as they predicted several months ago, by Oct. 1.

There are other odds and ends, such as the installing of hardware, which remain, but there have been delays in shipment of materials. Once the material arrives, it will be a matter of only a few days and that work will be done.

Water was poured into the swimming pool for the first time Thursday afternoon. The pool will be cleaned out and tested this week with city water, and then it will be filled permanently through the filtration system.

Lockschmidt, chaplain, and Theodore Van Elzen, historian.

Because of the extreme heat Friday, the high school, public and Holy Name school did not assemble during the afternoon session. Studies will be resumed Monday morning.

Plans are rapidly progressing for the fourth annual community and Kimberly mill safety day, scheduled for Oct. 25.

Mrs. Edward Wilke Elected President Of Church Society

Clintonville—Mrs. Edward Wilke

was elected president of the Methodist Ladies Aid society Thursday afternoon when a regular meeting was held at the home of Mrs. R. W. Mossholder on S. Main street. Mrs. Wilke will be assisted by three vice presidents, Mrs. John Meinhardt, Mrs. Harry Isaacson and Mrs. Ira Snider. Those reelected to office were Mrs. Roy Downham, secretary, and Mrs. George Hughes, treasurer.

After the business session, Mrs. Otto Olen gave a talk on her recent trip to Norway, where she and Mr. Olen visited the childhood homes of their parents. The meeting closed with the serving of lunch by Mrs. Mossholder and Mrs. M. B. Lendved.

Amity division of the Dorcas society held its September meeting Thursday afternoon at the church parlors.

Knights Templar of the Clintonville Commandery and the Ladies Auxiliary resumed their monthly meetings Thursday evening at the Masonic temple following a two months' summer recess. Plans were made for a covered-dish supper at the October meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Luedke entertained a large group of friends Thursday evening at their home on Torrey street.

Mesdames Leo Polzin, William Kuester, Walter Sievers and Robert Jinkler, Jr., were hostesses at a 6:30 dinner Thursday evening at Hotel Marston. Eight tables of contract bridge followed with honors awarded to Mrs. Clement Bohr, Mrs. Robert Olen, Mrs. Lloyd Pinkowsky and Mrs. Lewis E. Thomas.

Menasha Eagles Will Form Dartball League

Menasha—The dartball league of the Menasha Eagles will be organized at 7:30 Tuesday night at Eagles hall. Everyone who is interested in joining the league has been invited to attend the organization meeting. Lunch and refreshments will be served.

Whatever Choice U.S. Makes Aids One Side or the Other

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Now that the Americans know what the Monroe doctrine lets them in for, they may want to affirm, trim or revoke it. Hitherto, to the present citizenship of the country, the doctrine has been pretty much of a wall motto, but in the clutch created by Hitler's world war it comes to mean that the United States guarantees Canada's territorial integrity against not only Hitler but Hitlerism, even though Canada is, in a legalistic sense, the aggressor, having declared war on an unoffending European ruler who was virtually going about his patriotic duty of defending his people from the foul aggression of the bumptious Poles.

If President Roosevelt correctly interprets the doctrine in saying that the United States would not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened, the United States, without being actively aware of the fact, has a commitment, not to Canada but to herself, to go to war on Canada's behalf in certain easily conceivable conditions.

The doctrine has been interpreted in the past to permit foreign powers to attack and defeat American nations and dependencies of other foreign nations on this hemisphere. The catch is that such foreign powers, having attacked and chastised an American land in redress of real or imaginary wrongs, must not extend its sovereignty or system of government. A realist would decide that the best way to prevent such extension would be to make sure that no European power—and, in the present instance, Germany—won such a fight on this hemisphere. The president seems to be a realist.

The Monroe doctrine, then, obviously, is an important problem in the general question of neutrality, and, inasmuch as it has never been formally adopted by congress or approved by the people except in a passive way, it calls for definite understanding and positive decision now. It is not an enactment but a tradition, but the tradition is backed by numerous applications in specific cases and will be applied in the case of Canada or any other British possession in these parts unless the people now ask congress to get off the limb. It does seem doubtful that the meaning of the doctrine in relation to Canada's war with Hitler ever was fully anticipated, and while the idea of an attack on Canada by Hitler may seem fantastic, the commitment is there, nevertheless. Moreover, an attack by Hitler on the least coral speck owned by Britain or France in the prescribed zone would call for the same action, nor is it worth arguing that, once committed to hostilities by such mischance, the United States could then escape complete participation on the side of the allies.

Pro-Ally Element Is Opposed to Isolationists

Maybe that is what the American people understand and accept, but they never had a chance to express themselves on the subject, and the possibilities are too important for decision on the basis of a policy expressed in a much different state of the world more than 100 years ago in a presidential message which never was adopted as law.

The neutrality fight arrays the pro-ally element against the isolationists. There is no pro-German sentiment at all, and the efforts of the anti-American band only inflame the pro-ally feeling but fail to impress the isolationists one way or another.

The pro-ally group argue, that their kind of neutrality is the true neutrality, but they not only defend Hitler and want him licked and if possible killed but fear that if Britain were to fall this country would be next on the list and would be pushed around and finally drawn into a war, anyway. Attachment to Great Britain or the English is an important if unrecognized influence in this group of opinion. That kind of neutrality certainly is more warlike than the isolationist kind, and the sympathies inherent in it have been plainly shown in various speeches and little digs and in the detention of the Bremen.

Monroe Doctrine May Result In Some Action
The other neutrality, the existing kind, if affirmed, would be a terrible blow to the morale and the material resources of the allies and might beat them. These people think the United States could get in shape to stand off any threat from a victorious Hitler and protect her interests in the Pacific and Latin America without any assistance from Europe. Defeating Hitlerism not less heartily than the president does, they think the United States takes in too much territory in joining or assisting the allies.

So we just can't be neutral in fact. Whatever choice we make we help one side or the other, and whatever congress may do about it the Monroe Doctrine, as it stands, will still oblige the Americans to come to the aid of the British or French with his wife who is camping there. The wrecked machine was towed to the Tripod garage in this city.

AMERICA, CANADA AND GERMANY

Mr. Roosevelt's assertion of protection of Canada by America is denounced in the German papers as evidencing an attitude "unfair and unchivalrous to say nothing of being unneutral."

If you follow the German argument through to its end it would pass muster in a sophomore debate but it studiously avoids a consideration of the basic American reason for our traditional national action and, since Mr. Roosevelt has been personally anything but neutral, the Germans decline to take whatever he says at par.

The German argument is that if America takes upon itself the responsibility of seeing that American countries are not attacked from countries in the other Hemisphere it must also take upon itself the responsibility of preventing American countries from attacking any part of the Eastern Hemisphere.

This looks like good argument until you get at the bottom of it. Even then it may be said there is some justice to it. But the fact is that America cannot stop other parts of this Western Hemisphere from going to war with parts of the Eastern Hemisphere. And our protection of all parts of the Western Hemisphere is not based upon either affection or justice, however much those items may exist in the particular struggle, but persists solely upon the basis of self-interest. We just won't have any more of the Eastern Hemisphere in this hemisphere. We may be mistaken but we think our safety lies in excluding others from further footholds here or extending those already in existence.

In 1898 we fought a war to push Spain out of this Hemisphere. The wisdom of that action is now apparent. What sort of a pickle would America feel that it was in if Spain still held Cuba and Porto Rico and leased some of its harbors to Italy or, say, Russia?

Over 70 years ago we bought Alaska from the Moscow czar just because this country didn't like the sort of government maintained in that autocracy and felt that institutions that might be transplanted here from Russia might have an injurious effect upon our way of life.

As an academic matter of debate the question Germany proposes presents various angles conducive to warm argument. But as a matter of reality the Monroe Doctrine has been in existence for some 125 years—except as it may have been injured by the Neighborhood Policy but that could not help Germany unless it bought out Mexican or other similar rulers—and it will go on existing for generations to come.

As a matter of real concern the Germans will be lucky if they can hang onto Poland, the Italians will be fortunate if they can keep Ethiopia, Russia will be entirely satisfied if it doesn't commit suicide, but America has lots of work still to do in the Western Hemisphere, too much in fact to seek work or trouble elsewhere.

WHEN THE EXECUTIVE RUNS THE WHOLE SHOW

The conviction of Seymour Weiss and James Monroe Smith, pillars of the Huey Long dynasty, probably can be ascribed to nothing more than that they had a fair trial.

They were taken into federal court because no one would expect to convict them in state court. Actually they were indicted for an offense that never should have been brought into federal court and only got there by reason of an extreme technicality, the use of the mails to forward the check of $75,000 from New Orleans to Baton Rouge for division among these leaders who believed the best way to make "Every Man a Millionaire" was to get theirs first.

When it is necessary to employ the barest and hardest sort of technicality to place jurisdiction in an ordinary fraud and bribery case in the federal court the act has spoken volumes about the condition in the state courts. Huey insisted that he was always "a smart fellow." Certainly he was smart enough to kluge the state courts as soon as he got into power. No one expected to get on a jury in Louisiana state courts unless his labors in the political vineyard had been of that faithful kind that deadens all senses except to the sound of the master's voice.

Little wonder that Seymour Weiss, James Monroe Smith and all those pillars of the New Life felt perfectly safe to commit any bald theft with the state judges taking their hats off to them on the street, prosecutors aping their haberdashery and jurymen caring only to be informed which way they wanted them to vote.

BEATING THE DRUMS OF WAR

An article in the current issue of the Cosmopolitan Magazine speaks of Nazi methods in the German homeland in part as follows:

"A gigantic list has been drawn up, the Gestapo announced, of those who must die on the day war breaks out in order to preclude treason and sabotage. It will not be enough to intern political untrustworthies; mass execution will save huge concentration camp expenses and be a powerful lesson to the whole community."

All writers need to today is turn to the publications of 1914, scratch out the Kaiser and insert Hitler and make a few other appropriate changes, and the propaganda is ready for print. It is not that all of such stories are baseless because some of them are true. But it is that many of them are manufactured, given even preposterous outlines and submitted to the American people in the expectation that they will help a little in raising the blood temperature.

Elliot Roosevelt, the President's son, in a recent public address warned against permitting this great river of propaganda, so much of which is untrue to again inundate this country. And to illustrate his point he cited an example from World War No. 1 which many who followed the propaganda of that day will remember.

When the horror of American people in the friendliness of the Germans had been raised almost to the right pitch it was announced that documents on a dead German officer's body revealed orders to load all of the slain soldiers for transportation back to rendering plants in the Reich in order to obtain the necessary fats to keep the people alive while the war lasted.

Eventually an English propaganda writer admitted not only the falsity of the story but that he had composed the orders in German and actually planted them upon a German corpse so that those who made a practice of searching all dead bodies for information faced the world with a very natural horror when they gave this item to the public press.

War is a beastly business. We are not trying to soften its manifest savagery. But they are sufficient without enlargement and ordinarily they will be discovered in nearly equal parts on each side of almost any war, particularly after each side has been so hurt it is unable to see anything but red.

HOW ABOUT IT, MR. MURPHY?

Earl Browder testified on the stand before the Dies Committee that he traveled and lived abroad on a false American passport, that he knew it was false when he used it and that its very falsity had certain advantages to him. When the examiner asked him what name he traveled under he refused to answer on the ground that he might incriminate himself, presumably because he would thus furnish a direct lead to uncovering the whole nest of wriggling squirmers that have been using false passports of this country for years, not alone for their own criminal purposes, but likewise selling them to others.

Our Attorney-General is one Murphy who has often spoken of the high standards of the Department of Justice, the purity of his purposes, and the clean sweep he will make of wrongdoers. No doubt Mr. Murphy is busy already. For the federal law contains a very precise penalty for anyone who would snap his fingers in contempt at his own government as has Mr. Browder.

We aren't interested a particle in whether Mr. Browder goes to jail or not. He has served in prison before and it didn't do him any good, although it probably relieved the public for a while.

But we have had a sort of faith in Mr. Murphy's standard of ethics and are wondering to what extent it has decayed in his new surroundings.

WHEN WE'LL NEED NO THANKSGIVING

The governors of various states have been wrestling with the profound question of whether to proclaim November 23 or November 30 as Thanksgiving Day.

No one has seemed to consider the chaos that would follow if the President proclaimed November 23 and all the governors stuck to November 30.

We are surprised someone hasn't suggested devoting every Thursday in November to Thanksgiving Day. One gaze at China, another at Poland; one look at the squalor of Russia, the curled knout still ripping bare backs open, and another at Mexico, where to rule one must be primarily unfit, and it seems we should have occasion for more than one Thanksgiving a year.

But not too fast! There must be a counter stroke to every pendulum swing and when we get into World War No. 2, let us at least have sufficient sense left to abolish Thanksgiving entirely.

The most popular Russian cigarettes are called Kazbek. This is not a brand name, because there are no brand names in Russia. Each cigarette has about two inches of tobacco and three inches of paper mouthpiece.

The Nizam of Hyderabad, who has $500,000,000 in gold, $2,000,000,000 in jewels, and an income of $50,000,000 a year, is probably the richest man in the world.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Manhattan Marquee:

The theatre has lately become a mechanized, uninspired business. It has not as yet sensed its own senility, but senile it grows just the same. Instead of new enthusiasms, it parades the same old formulas. With a new season opening, the drought of the drama becomes ever more apparent.

The first production to demonstrate the poverty of its inspiration is a new George White's Scandals. It is done in the same old George White mold, far less talented than some of its earlier ones, and certainly not calculated to set the world ablaze with either its music, or its lyrics. Willie Howard is there, and he is as funny as ever, if you happen to think Willie Howard is funny.

"Yokel Boy" is making a strenuous effort to attract the musical comedy trade without too much to offer, unless the public is willing to settle for just-another musical. The tunes are good, and Buddy Ebsen and Judy Canova are good fun.

"Hello a Poppin'" never as good a show as its sensational box figures would indicate, rolls on, a snowball that started downhill listlessly and rolled itself into perispheric proportions. Tailor Bankhead, after several years of fumbling around in unsuitable vehicles, has her first definite Broadway hit in "The Little Foxes," and Katherine Hepburn, for the first time since "The Warrior's Husband," goes into the fall after a surprisingly successful run in "The Philadelphia Story."

The Music Room:
From Bob MacGimsey, the whistler-composer and authority on Negro spirituals, who has been summering at his Lake Providence, La., plantation, comes an interesting letter from which I quote. Mr. MacGimsey is conducting a sort of one-man hunt for old, authentic Negro music.

"I have found two little churches, quite isolated, down in the swamp, where they sing the old fashioned spirituals in the old fashioned way. . . . There strayed onto the plantation last week a tall, skinny, black Negro, about 60, with a 'box' (guitar) under his arm. He was born in Alabama, raised in the church, but about 25 years ago he was turned out of the church for picking the box and singing blues songs. The workmen on the plantations like to hear him sing, so he wanders from place to place. He knows countless old spirituals which he has stored in his memory from the days in church, and he has been sitting here on the front gallery (porch to you) singing them to me for the past three days, over and over, and I have taken down a whole book full of them in detail.

"A singular thing is that he sings only those songs which are in the major mode, the probable reason being that he cannot play the guitar in the minor. Also, he was cent of the old spirituals were in the major mode anyhow, even though to the untrained ear most of them sound like they were in the minor. Here are some of the titles of songs he gave me: 'He's a Mighty Good Leader,' 'I'm Goin' Home on the Mornin' Train,' 'The Blind Man Stood on the Way and Cried,' 'Drinkin' Wine,' 'Stand on the Rock,' 'Everybody Got to Lay Down,' and 'God's Little Angels Goin' to Shine.'

"I wouldn't take a pretty for the songs I've learned from him. Have been feeding him fried chicken, corn bread and mustard greens and furnishing him a place to stay here, hoping in the near future he will have time to take down this valuable, authentic music. Where he will drift when he leaves, there is no telling. Even he does not know—and doesn't much care."

A Man Told Me That:
The odds against your being murdered in America are 10,000 to one.

If an officer should make a mistake and hang a condemned man instead of electrocuting him, it's a felony, and the hanged man may sue, except that this doesn't make sense.

Every forty-second person in America has a police record.

Only one woman commits suicide to every three men.

Out of about 10,000 murders committed each year, only two per cent of the murderers are ever convicted and punished.

There used to be a law in old Virginia (1682) to punish "dabbling women." The penalty was to duck the dame in the nearest body of water. That's what the man told me.

25 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Sept. 13, 1914

News was received that day that Mike Steinhauer and his family had landed in New York after a visit in Germany. It was feared the family might have difficulty returning to the states because of the war.

Twenty couples surprised Fred Gehring at his home a mile north of Second avenue. Fred Nicholas presided at the piano, while Oscar Kramer and Harry Cotes sang. Music for dancing was furnished by Walter Gustin on a concertina.

The first hunting license granted to a woman in Outagamie county in two years was issued that morning to Miss Gertrude Kuehn of Dale.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

NATURE'S PLAN

Maple and birch, oak tree and tamarack,
Commune together, growing side by side,
Their mingled shade, luxuriant and wide,
Cools the hot sand in front, the lawn in back.

All summer long, their voices never cease.
Alien branches call each other friend.
They tell us, as the tranquil stars ascend,
That Nature's plan is for eternal peace.

To do fitting honor to a guest, some Arabs believe, they must serve freshly-killed meat. The servant of a sheik will bring in a lamb or kid—alive—so that the visitor may see what an excellent animal it is. Then it is killed for the evening meal.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The surprise sinking of the passenger steamer Athenia might act as a warning to England that she had better adopt at once a system of anti-submarine warfare that America perfected for her during the World war.

principal submarine outlet into the Atlantic. Thereafter Germany "officially" lost a dozen submarines among the mines and an unestimated number that failed to leave any trace.

It was Admiral Sims and his officers who also perfected the convoy system that permitted U. S. troops to get to France with the loss of only one boat.

The Athenia evidently was without convoy of any kind.

The 'Lusitania'
The Lusitania had somewhat the same experience and a lot of unfriendly stories arose about her.

The Lusitania sailed with a cargo of American and foreign passengers, together with some war materials, straight in the face of warnings published by Germany in American papers that the boat was certain to be a target for submarines. When it reached the submarine zone it got no protective convoy. Further, for some reason which has not yet been explained, the commander of the ship did not zig-zag as he approached home. That is one way of preventing submarines from getting a proper aim. Further, the commander slowed his speed to barely half the ship's maximum. The Lusitania was old meat to a submarine.

Repeatedly it has been suggested, and repeatedly it has been denied, that England let the Lusitania run the gauntlet without protection, in the expectation that her sinking would rouse Americans further against German "atrocities" and bring America into the war on the side of the Allies.

There isn't a shred of evidence to associate the Athenia with such stories, but the general effect on American sentiment appears much the same as that generated by the Lusitania.

The 'American Plan'

The convoy system, designed to prevent such tragedies, works well. It is run this way: A group of cargo vessels set out from America. The ships may be convoyed entirely across the Atlantic if the cargoes are worth the additional trouble.

In any event, a convoy of fast submarine chasers or destroyers picks up the group far out in the Atlantic and swiftly herds them into port. The gun boats watch the slower cargo vessels as sheep-dogs watch a band of woolies. They circle them, dart in and out among them while all vessels keep an ever-watchful eye for any periscope that may be jabbed above the surface for a second's look-see.

At the slightest hint of the presence of submarines they drop depth bombs which are so powerful they will crack the seams of submarines as much as 75 yards from the burst. A whole pattern of depth bombs may be dropped. Depth bombs are cheap, compared with cargo vessels.

In the submarine zone the cargo ships zig-zag and wriggle in irregular courses. That makes it difficult for the submarine to aim its torpedoes, especially since the presence of the sub-chasers may keep the submarine two miles or more away from the target.

You can just about bank on it: The "American plan" will prevent the sinking of such a high percentage of cargo vessels as England lost during the early months of the submarine campaign last time.

Just a Step Behind the News

You can't blame Poland if she thinks she made a big mistake in depending on the allies to protect her from being treated rough by Hitler. She must feel like the heroine, strapped to the buzz-saw, who got a note from friends in China saying, "they can't do that to you."

I don't suppose the allies could have done much more than they have, but just the same, if I was a Pole, I'd be shoved back toward the border where several million Russians will be waiting. The land-grabbing is about to begin, and already the plans are out to cut Poland a small slice of obscure real estate and mark it "buffer state. Do not disturb."

Stalin is trotting out the same old "props" used by the unscrupulous when they are about to cut up a small nation. He accuses the Poles of "mistreating minorities," "oppression," lying over Russian territory, and all that. He even calls the whole war a capitalist plot.

Stalin and Hitler are getting closer and closer in their buddy act and can be depended on to give a new lease of life to the double-cross, the old army game and the never-give-a-sucker-an-even-break technique.

There's only one consoling thought. It would be worse if they trusted each other.

Sales Tax Pennies are Dropped in Fish Bowl

Paola, Kas. —(7)—One Paola merchant keeps his state sales tax collections liquid—in liquid.

Beside his cash register he keeps a fish bowl partly filled with water. Clerks must drop the pennies collected in sales tax into the bowl. The water, he explained, discourages clerks from reaching into the convenient pennies, make change and thus complicating his bookkeeping system.

FOR GOSH SAKE POCAHONTAS! DO YOUR STUFF

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — Of relatively small moment, but interesting, is the problem of issuing proclamations which Gov. Heil has encountered since he entered office.

The governor has a brilliant knack for publicity, and he has found that there are many sources eager to gain from the publicity resources at his command.

A comment by a reporter the other day to one of Heil's secretaries to the effect that the executive is issuing more than his share of proclamations calling for celebrations of this "week and that day" brought the disclosure that the governor is accepting only a small fraction of the suggestions which come in every day's mail from publicity seeking individuals and organizations.

In a single folder now awaiting attention are such requests for proclamations on PTA Week, Honey Day, Graphic Arts Week, Better Parents Week, Constitution Sunday, Flag Day, Highway Week, Children's Week, Business Women's Week, Pulaski Memorial Day, and others. In fact, were the governor to grant all the requests which come to him there would be proclamations enough to make each day and week of his term a celebration of something or other.

REACTIONS COOL

Reactions to the appointments of Major Rickeman and S. J. McMahon by Heil have been less than cordial than the administration expected, capitol reports say.

The prompt revelation by Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman, who calls the reorganization and removal of his motor vehicle division a foolish piece of business and who isn't fond of Heil anyway, that Heil's appointee to the directorship of the reorganized division had never driven or owned a car doubtless brought smiles to many faces.

Then the prompt filing of more than $20,000 worth of judgments against the salary of McMahon as tax commissioner was not calculated to do the administration any good in gaining prestige.

Not: The judgments against state employees are filed in Zimmerman's office. Within a few hours after the McMahon papers were filed, the story was published in Madison's Progressive newspaper.

HEIL'S VETOES

It is worthy of note that Gov. Heil's vetoes thus far have all been on highly significant measures, and all have been based on expenditures.

During the months to come there will doubtless rage a long debate on the failure of the Republican administration to fulfill its economy and tax reduction aims, whether the fault lay with the governor or the legislature.

It is significant, therefore, that the governor has several times vetoed appropriation bills, and taken the opportunity to deliver a nicely phrased lecture on economy in his veto message returning the appropriation proposal to the legislature.

POT-POURRI

Mayor James Law of Madison, a Republican and president of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, has had some pretty serious differences with Heil lately. . . . Cap-

Personal Health Talks

A USEFUL TOOTH IN THAT VACANT SPACE

In an article published recently, I said:

"A recent development of American dentistry—always the finest in the world—is the peg tooth. An artificial tooth perhaps having a porcelain jacket crown, is cemented to a peg or base of the alloy vitallium which is screwed into the jaw bone where it is retained as tightly and comfortably as you please."

Thus the up-to-date dentist fills the vacant space with a single tooth, which gives the appearance of the patient's natural tooth and serves admirably in a functional way, without molesting the normal teeth on either side of the vacant space to use them as anchors for a bridge.

Perhaps that was simplifying the procedure more than the plodding old dentists are prepared to approve. In order to set the vitallium peg in the jaw of course it is necessary for the dentist to inject a local anesthetic, make an incision through the gum down to the surface of the jaw bone, and then screw the vitallium peg in about one-half an inch, much as a person might set a screw in wood.

Such vitallium alloy screws, nails, and the like have been used extensively in the bone surgery and repair of fractures. The alloy seems to be strong enough for the purpose and to be acceptable to the tissues—it causes little or no irritation.

As I expected, several mincing little men seized on this as a good excuse for telling me what an ignorant person I am, that such an assertion is "nothing less than vicious."

That is it what they would expect from a miserable hack writer who doesn't even know that dentists are legally entitled to use the title "Doctor."

Shucks, it is no use. I have said here scores of times that of course the man or woman with the degree of D.D.S. or D.M.D. is legally entitled to use the title "Doctor." Personally, I'd no more think of addressing such a person by any other title than I'd think of addressing a physician as Mr., Mrs. or Miss.

But my quarrel with the dental profession concerning dental education and the anomalous position of this branch of medicine today is beside the point.

The peg tooth is a step in advance and American dentistry should be proud of it. If the old mossbacks in the profession can be stopped from babbling long enough to learn how to gain this advantage for their patients, a great many people now limping along with one tooth missing rather than sacrifice teeth on either side of the vacant space for bridge anchorage, will be happy to have that space filled with a good looking, functionally efficient tooth.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Why Give Up?

What causes adhesions after an operation, for instance for appendicitis? Are they serious? What symptoms does one notice? My wife and I think a lot of your articles. If you kick off before we do I guess we'll just give ourselves up? (W. L.)

Answer—On what charge? Adhesions always form after operation or wound, an essential of healing. Rarely do they cause any symptoms. Don't watch for symptoms. If you have any complaint let your doctor determine what the trouble is.

Unbidden Guests

Please tell Mrs. L. J. M. to have the drugist put ten cents worth of carbolic acid in a pint of gasoline and let the unbidden guests (bed-bugs) have it. She will have no more trouble. (W. B. L.)

Answer—Thank you. Probably squirting gasoline or kerosene in cracks or crevices where the bugs hide will do as well. In any case, great caution must be used against striking matches or having a flame in the room. Send ten cents coin and stamped addressed envelope for booklet "Unbidden Guests"—it tells how to deal with them all, from cockies to ringworms.

Thanks From a Centenarian

Just a week ago Dr. — did transurethral resection, and here I am home and in fine fettle. Believe me I am grateful for your advice. I was drifting into that "bladder" state you described so well. Your teaching saved me. (J. W.)

Answer—Glad to send on request—if you inclose stamped envelope bearing your address, monograph on "Prosthetic Obstruction."

Since I experienced such prompt relief from taking potassium chloride as suggested in one of your articles—it gave me the most comfortable season I have known in twenty years of misery with hay fever—I wonder why you say so little about it. Are you prejudiced against "potash" or in favor of calcium? (K. A. R.)

Answer—Not at all. In fact, I eat some potash every day. Couldn't get along without it. The treatment is simple, harmless for any one to try for a week or so. It has given remarkable relief in many cases of hay fever, asthma, sinus trouble, allergic rhinitis. Dissolve five grains of potassium chloride in a glassful of water. Take the glassful three times a day. It is nearly tasteless. Several readers reported that drugstore salesmen insisted on selling them potassium chlorate when they asked for potassium chloride. That has deterred me from saving more about it.

Mina, Nev. —(7)—An unusual partnership exists in operation of a small mine in the Camp Douglas district. The miners are Al Lacey, 80 years old, and Harry Springer, aged 13. The partners recently got off a shipment of gold ore to the smelter.

Belanger to Head Membership Drive Of Senior Chamber

W. K. Miller Is Appointed Chairman of Forum Committee

Directors of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce at a meeting yesterday noon in the Candle-Glow Tea room appointed F. M. Belanger chairman of the steering committee for the fall membership drive and W. K. Miller chairman of the forum committee.

The committee which Belanger heads will direct the annual membership campaign of the chamber. Miller's committee is responsible for obtaining speakers for the forum meetings which the chamber sponsors each fall and winter and to which members of the city's service clubs are invited.

Representatives of the chamber, city administration, board of education, and college will constitute the general committee. Representing the board of education are Seymour Gmeiner, president, Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, and H. H. Heible, Appleton High school principal.

The chamber directors discussed at their meeting yesterday plans for the electrical lecture and demonstration which will be presented Friday night at Morgan school by Dr. Phillips Thomas, Westinghouse research expert. The chamber is sponsoring the lecture.

Board of Review to Open Meeting Monday

The board of review will convene at 9 o'clock Monday morning in the new Appleton city hall for a 2-week session. The board will confer with property owners on matters of assessments.

The finance committee of the city council is scheduled to meet at 1:30 Monday afternoon at city hall and the street lighting committee at 7:30 Monday night. A session of the street and bridge group is scheduled for 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Condition of Youth Hit by Car Is Improved

The condition of George Baeten, 20, West DePere, who was seriously injured when struck by a car, at the Nitingale ballroom north of Kaukauna early Monday morning, today was reported improved at St. Vincent's hospital, Green Bay. Baeten stumbled in the path of a car driven by Clayton Van Asten, route 2, Appleton, and was dragged about 100 feet. Several vertebrae in his back were fractured.

Roth Hi-Y Sponsors Grid Dance Tonight

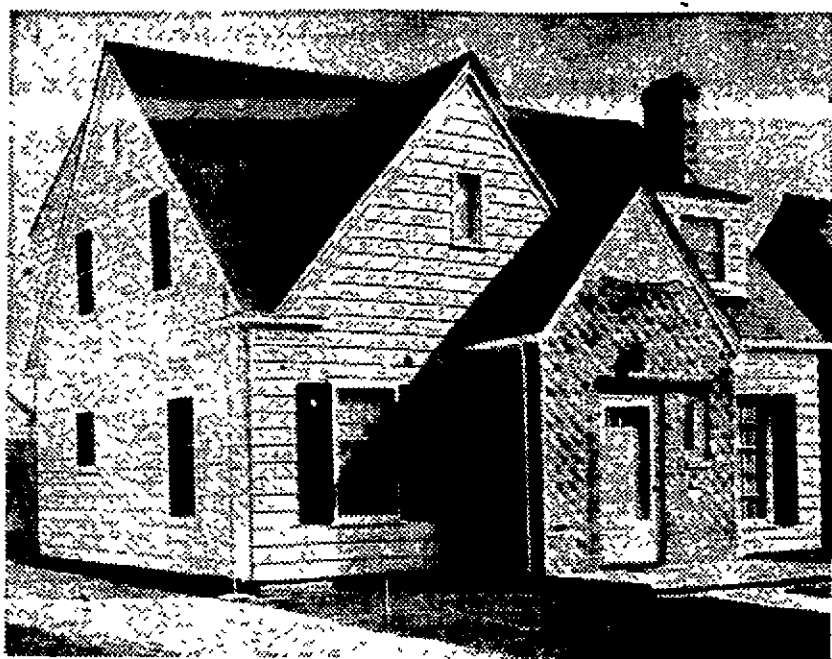

The Roth Hi-Y club will sponsor a football dance at the Y. M. C. A. tonight for the high school students attending the Appleton High-Boys Tech (Milwaukee) game this afternoon.

The dance will start at 8:30. An electric phonograph will furnish the music.

Retired Official Of Dairy, Age 69, Enrolls at Carroll

Waukesha—(P)—G. W. Graesskamp, 69, retired secretary-treasurer of the Griddy Dairy Company of Milwaukee, was enrolled today as a freshman at Carroll college.

A believer in the adage that a man never is too old to learn, Graesskamp followed his children's footsteps. Four sons and one daughter have graduated from Carroll. Graesskamp attended high school in Sheboygan county, then attended Spencerian Business college. He was connected with the Old National Exchange bank in Milwaukee for 26 years before spending years in the dairy company.

NEW LLOYD PAUL RESIDENCE

The new home pictured above at 412 W. Parkway has been occupied by the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Paul. The living type home is 1½ stories high. On the first floor are dining and living rooms, kitchen, powder room, vestibule, and a through hall, with woodwork done in ash. Upstairs are three bedrooms, with yellow pine woodwork, and a bath. The home has an air-conditioned oil heating plant. Theodore Utschig was the contractor. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Appleton Autoists Still are Committing Traffic 'Boners'

Sergeant Carl Radtke, head of the police traffic division, today asked motorists to cooperate with police in refraining from hazardous acts on city streets. Radtke has been making a survey and reports that many motorists are following habits that invite traffic accidents.

One mother this week stopped at a school for her child and parked on the opposite side of the street, so that the pupil had to cross the middle of the street to get to the car. Radtke said. This is a dangerous practice, he pointed out in saying that if the mother had been safely minded, she would have parked on the near side of the street or instructed the child to cross at the crossing.

Another mother stopped on the south side of Wisconsin avenue and sent her child across the heavily traveled street on an errand to a store on the north side of the street. This occurred only a few days after a child was killed crossing Wisconsin avenue, Radtke said. Delivery boys also are in the habit of driving to the left side of a street to make a delivery, and then driving back across the opposite driving lane to get on their own side of the street. This practice makes two actions that invite accidents, Radtke explained, one in crossing the lane in front of possible oncoming traffic and the other in crossing back again.

Program of Dental Hygiene Is Opened In County Schools

7,000 Children to be Examined; Hygienist Is Appointed

A dental hygiene and educational program sponsored jointly by the county board and the Outagamie County Dental society has been started in Outagamie county.

Miss Maybelle Counihan, dental hygienist and a graduate of Marquette university, has been hired to work with Miss Marie Klein, county nurse.

Miss Counihan will examine school children throughout the county, draw up statistical reports on the condition of their teeth, and direct the educational side of the program, which will involve both health talks and the distribution of literature.

Dr. H. F. O'Brien was appointed by the Outagamie County Dental society to represent it on the health committee of the county board and to assist in directing the dental hygiene program.

Miss Counihan has already begun her work in county schools. She will examine approximately 7,000 students in 129 schools.

A letter explaining the aims and methods of the program has been sent to all dentists in the county. The statistical reports prepared during the examinations will present detailed facts on the condition of the school children's teeth, such as the number of baby teeth and permanent teeth with cavities and the number of permanent teeth lost.

The county dental society has pointed to similar programs in other counties as being effective in improving the health condition of school children.

Grading Work on '41' Progressing

Superhighway Connecting Link Project 65 Per Cent Completed

Grading work being done by the Lathers Construction company Madison, on the Superhighway 41 connecting link west of Appleton is about 65 per cent completed, an official of the company said today. The grading project is expected to be completed by Nov. 1.

About 65 men are employed at the present time and they work in two daily shifts. Filling in on the west side, one of two on the connecting link, which is about three miles long, has been going on for several weeks.

Placing of sand topping will be started next week at the east end of the project at the intersection of Highways 41 and 57. Work will proceed westward as the filling in job is being done. The sand will be taken from a pit that will be started Monday near the Lathers construction camp on County Trunk A.

Paving of the connecting link will not be done this year.

Youth Given Term at Waupun for Car Theft

Robert Brower, 19, 1609 N. Richmond street, was sentenced to from 1 to 4 years in state's prison at Waupun by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning for operating a car without the consent of the owner. Brower, who pleaded guilty, was arrested last week by city police who first attempted to arrest him for speeding. Brower jumped from the car which went into a ditch and was damaged. The machine was owned by Walter Jolin, Stephensville.

SOTAL Fund Boosted By Proceeds of Dance

Members of the Onay Johnston post of the American Legion, the auxiliary, and others enjoyed a dance at Rainbow Gardens last night, the proceeds going into a fund to send the SOTAL Drum and Bugle corps to Chicago to compete at the national legion convention. The SOTAL unit, which won state honors in 1938 and scored the highest number of points at Oshkosh this summer, will leave at 6:30 next Sunday morning for Chicago. Competition will be held Monday.

Institute Will Start Term Next Wednesday

Fifty-three students are expected to be enrolled in the Institute of Paper Chemistry when it opens its 1939-40 term next Wednesday. The enrollment will include 15 freshmen students who are present are taking a field course in the Michigan forests.

Upper-classmen will register next Tuesday. First-year students will register upon their return from the "bush" course on Sept. 21.

Appleton Photographer Is Awarded 2 Medals

Frank F. Koch, Appleton photographer, won second and third prizes in commercial photography competition at the Wisconsin State Photographers convention this week at Madison.

Koch was awarded a silver medal for his picture of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company sign at night and a bronze medal for a study of paper stacks in the Neenah Paper company warehouse.

3 Cases of Contagion Reported During Week

Only three cases of communicable diseases were reported in Outagamie county during the week ended Sept. 9, according to information received by Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, from the state board of health. The three cases, one of measles and two of whooping cough, were reported in the town of Oneida.

Smokers Laying in Supply of Cigarets To Avoid State Tax

"I'm going to quit smoking. I know I know my New Year's resolution, but now I've got more incentive."

This is typical of remarks being made by many smokers following the announcement that a new state law imposing a 2-cent tax on every package of cigarettes becomes effective next week.

Many other smokers are looking ahead and are putting in a large supply to get away from the higher price that will be charged when the tax stamps are issued. Appleton storekeepers today reported that cigarette sales have jumped since yesterday with smokers rushing to purchase before the tax becomes effective.

Relief Costs of City Take Upward Swing in August

Expenditures Total $3,944, Increase of $404 Over July

Appleton relief costs during August totaled $3,944.59, an increase of $404.07 over July and an increase of $235.52 over August of 1938. The number of cases given aid also was greater, being 45 as against 41 in July and 38 in August of last year, according to a report compiled by the relief accounting department for F. A. W. Hammond, city relief director.

The city paid $98.95 to other counties for clients not residing in the city at present, bringing the total cost to $4,043.54. A total of $967.61 also was spent for county charges, but the city is reimbursed this amount. There were 218 Appleton persons employed on WPA projects during the month.

Provisions in August cost $1,453.57, an increase of $110.30 over July; administration $629.55, an increase of $41.55; shelter $768.34, an increase of $35.83; clothing $157.21, an increase of $165.78; fuel $31.44, an increase of $11; public utilities $21.24, a decrease of $17.06; all other direct relief $32.35, an increase of $29.50; direct relief paid in cash $72.50.

Medical costs in August included drugs and equipment $67.06, a decrease of $183.11; physicians $97.45, an increase of $65.45; dental care $26, a decrease of $29.50; hospitalization $322.88, an increase of $105.32; burials $51, an increase of $51.

Mooney Urges Labor To Settle Disputes

Milwaukee—(P)—Thomas J. Mooney, addressing about 1,500 persons at the auditorium last night, urged labor to "heal the breach in your ranks."

Mooney addressed what was termed a "rank and file" unity meeting which was without the blessing of the Milwaukee Federated Trades council (AFL) and had only indirect support of the Milwaukee County Industrial Union council (CIO).

He paid tribute to former Governor Philip LaFollette, Mayor Hoan, Professor William Ellery Leonard of the University of Wisconsin, former Representative Thomas Amle, and the late Victor Berger for their aid in securing his freedom.

Parking Law Violators Fined $1, Cost, Each

Three motorists were fined $1 and costs each by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday for violating the city parking law. The motorists, arrested by city police, are Al Koplar, 318 N. Appleton street; Mary Dehn, 111 N. Superior street; and Dan Steinberg, Jr., 1500 S. Alicia street.

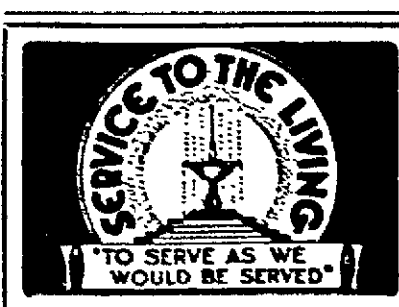

It Is Said--

Love of sport never was exemplified any more fully than down at the new Lawrence college tennis courts yesterday afternoon.

With the thermometer chiming itself at about 95 or so in the shade and the temperature probably 10 or more degrees higher than that on the paved courts, a group of students still were bounding around the place. There were even girls present.

City Has Eight Cases Of Contagious Disease

Four cases of whooping cough and one of scarlet fever appeared in the city this week, Claude Griesch, deputy health officer, reported. Contagious disease cases numbered eight in the city today, seven whooping cough and one scarlet fever.

Bird Feed Program May be Adopted in Outagamie County

Conservation Club Hears Talk by Official of State Nursery

The Outagamie County Conservation club last night heard Earl Wallace of the Central State Nursery at Wisconsin Rapids outline aims and methods of the program for increasing the number of song and game birds by restoring natural feed and cover conditions.

Plans for a meeting next month of Outagamie county sportsmen, conservationists, and farmers to consider extension of such a program into this county were discussed.

Wallace heads the division within the state conservation department which supervises the planting of seedling trees and shrubs in game areas to increase the feed for birds.

He discussed the program at last night's meeting at the courthouse, pointing out that there is no sacrifice of farm lands because only waste and idle strips of property are used.

At the Central State Nursery, the state for the last several years has established experimental pens to discover what kind of plant life is best for birds.

Plans for actual planting in Outagamie county will be made at next month's meeting and movies of nursery experiments will be shown.

Police Capture Escaped Prisoner

Charles Prue, Who Escaped on Visit to Home, Found in Ravine

City police this morning captured Charles Prue, 1427 N. Clark street, who escaped from a Manitowish deputy sheriff Thursday night while he was being taken to Manitowish from the Winnebago county jail at Oshkosh.

Prue was found hiding in a clump of weeds about 9:30 by Patrolman Frank Bick and Motorcyclist Officer Gustave Hersekom in the ravine off Rankin street. Prue attempted to run when discovered, but he was caught after a short chase.

The prisoner had escaped Thursday after asking to stop in Appleton to visit his family. He climbed out of a window from the home while the deputy sheriff waited for him to complete his visit. Prue is being held at the city jail and Manitowish authorities have been notified.

To the mental comfort of perfect service, sympathetic understanding and long experience has been added the further comfort of air conditioning and cooling by electric refrigeration.

New Pastor Will Hold Services at Waupaca Church

Rev. DeLoyd Krembs Also Will Serve Parish at Weyauwega

Waupaca—The Rev. DeLoyd Krembs will be welcomed into the parish of St. Mary Magdalene Sunday morning when he conducts initial services. He was transferred by Bishop Paul P. Rhode from St. Patrick's parish, Lanark. Father Krembs arrived Thursday afternoon to begin his duties in this and the church of Sts. Peter and Paul at Weyauwega. No changes in schedules of either church will be made and customs of both churches will be followed. A special installation service will be arranged for a later date.

Father Krembs was born in Stevens Point, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Krembs. His early education was received at St. Stephen's parochial school. Stevens Point and in the Stevens Point high school. He later attended Campion college, Prairie du Chien and followed that by graduating from the law school of Marquette university, Milwaukee. Completing a course in St. Paul seminary, St. Paul, he transferred to the University of St. Louis, St. Louis, Mo., from which he was graduated.

After some years spent in teaching, he was ordained by Bishop Paul P. Rhode of the Green Bay diocese May 4, 1927. On May 15 of the same year he was assigned as assistant to the church of St. Mary Oshkosh. Five years were spent as assistant in this parish and also as principal of St. Mary's high school. In addition he served as chaplain of the Northern hospital.

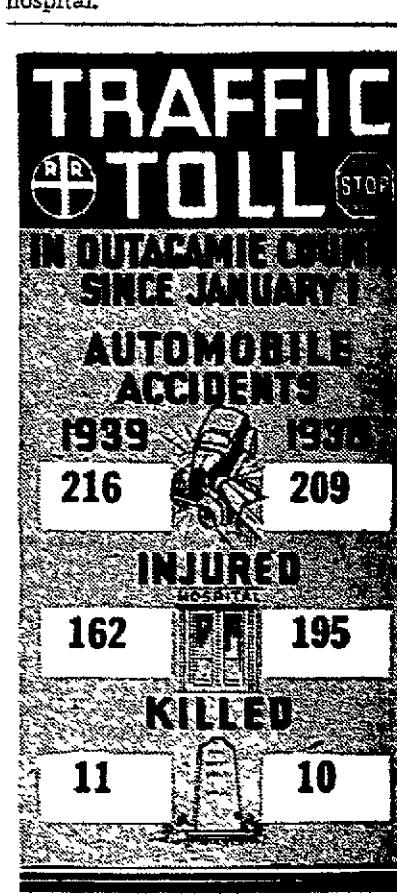

Being assigned to Sacred Heart parish in Aurora, Wis., he was also in charge of the Pembine and Dunbar missions but after two months Father Krembs was sent to St. Patrick's parish Lanark. This charge also included the mission of St. James, Amherst.

Father Francis Peter Schoettl, who preceded Father Krembs, now has charge of St. Patrick's church, Maple Grove, Manitowish county.

Is Nutritia Milk as Rich as Other Milk?

Housewives sometimes ask this question about our Nutritia Milk. Since Nutritia Milk has no cream line, is it as rich as the other milk?

Again, we repeat that Nutritia Milk is rich whole milk which is subjected to a process that breaks down the fat globules of the milk causing the particles to remain suspended throughout the milk instead of rising to the top as cream. The richness of Nutritia Milk is THE SAME as the original milk. There is nothing added — nothing subtracted.

In fact, the main purpose of this process is to make the milk uniformly rich throughout. In this way each member of the family gets his share of the richness of the milk instead of one person getting most of the cream. THE BOTTOM DROP IS AS RICH AS THE TOP! Why not try it yourself and see if you don't like it better than ordinary milk? This process makes this milk ALSO MORE EASILY DIGESTIBLE than other milk. It tastes better and is better. Just call us 834 — the price is 10c per quart delivered.

A banquet and talent quest in which two Appleton girls will be entered are scheduled for Sunday night. The Appleton girls are Miss Marion Maves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Maves, 110 E. Randall street, and Miss Arlene Ballard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ballard, 706 N. Owassa street. Both won first place in their divisions at the district preliminary contest. Miss Maves will present a reading, "Grandma Keeler Gets Grandpa Keeler Ready for Sunday School," by Sally Pratt McLean, and Miss Ballard will sing "Just for Today," by Blanche Seaver, and "Thanks Be to God," words by P. J. O'Reilly and music by Stanley Dickson. Mrs. F. M. Moor will accompany her at the piano.

Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Therese church will attend communion in a body at the 7:30 mass Sunday morning at St. Therese church. After the mass the group will have a breakfast and business meeting in the parish hall. Miss Dolores Stoffel and Miss Margaret Brock are in charge of arrangements for the breakfast.

There will be no services Sunday in Immanuel Lutheran church, Greenville, because its pastor, Rev. Leonard Kasper, will be at Sturgeon Bay to preach the nuptial mass there. The Rev. Otto Hennig is pastor of the Sturgeon Bay church.

Club Launches 1939-40 Season With Banquet

APPLETON Girls club opened its 1939-40 season with a 6:30 banquet Friday night at the Copper Kettle. A Mother Goose roll call was used in bringing each member to her chair. The program included an account by Mrs. A. A. Wetzel of her recent trip through the state of Washington, where she met an Appleton Girls club charter member, Mrs. Frank Rice, the former Miss Nell Fraser. Mrs. Wetzel spent three hours with Mrs. Rice on her fruit farm near Wenatchee, Wash.

The program closed with a group of three songs sung by Miss Myrtle Lecker. They were "Estrellita," a Mexican serenade, by Ponce; "Little Damozel," by Ivor Novello; and "The Secret," by John Prindle Scott. Miss Emma Pynn and her sister, Mrs. Laura Inman, who will leave soon for California, where they will remain for about a year, received a roll call and were presented with a group of letters from the members of the group.

Fiction club will open its season with a 1 o'clock luncheon Monday afternoon at the Candle Glow Tea room. On the committee are Mrs. Guy Barlow, chairman, Mrs. Frank Wilson, Mrs. Mary Denney, Mrs. Joseph Mallory, Mrs. H. K. Pratt and Mrs. Harwood Finkle.

Members of Betsy Ross club, composed of past presidents of J. T. Reeve circle, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, were entertained at a dessert luncheon Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Effie Eberhardt, 212 N. Meade street. Their next meeting, on Oct. 20, will take place at the home of Mrs. Hattie Miller, 617 N. Superior street.

Mrs. Ralph Barrell entertained her bridge club last night at her home, 126 E. McKinley street. The prize was won by Mrs. George Kirschen, Mrs. Miss Mae Hayes, 109 E. Orange street, will be hostess to the club next week.

The Jolly Workers Home Economics club, which met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Malcolm McCoy, route 2, will have its next meeting Oct. 11 at the home of Mrs. Fred Bohl, route 3.

Flanagan Speaker At Institutes Held In Three Counties

Chilton—F. J. Flanagan, county superintendent of schools, addressed the Dodge County Teachers' institute at Juneau Friday on recent legislation affecting rural school education, including the teachers' certification law, the bill reducing state aid to schools with a wage schedule of less than 10 students, high school transportation bill allowing high schools to transport students, and the abolishment of tenure for one room school teachers.

Mr. Flanagan spoke on the above subjects at the Calumet county institute last Friday, which was attended by over forty county teachers and at the Fond du Lac county institute two weeks ago.

The Chilton Boy Scouts met this week with an attendance of 28 and decided to meet every Wednesday evening this coming fall and winter.

Beginning next week the stores and business places in Chilton will be closed on Wednesday evenings and Thursday afternoons. Stores will meet on Saturday evenings.

Children Should Start Going To Dentist at the Age of 2

BY ANGELO PATRI

Mothers are warned to care for the young child's teeth; told that they must start going to the dentist at the age of two; that the foundation teeth are important and must be kept clean and free of decay. If some of those teeth have to be removed fillers must be set in to hold the shape of the jaw. The truth of these laws is unquestioned. But where are the dentists who do this work? And where are the dentists who do it for so reasonable a fee that all mothers can have all children treated when treatment is needed?

I am still hoping that dental colleges will send out dentists who have the care of little children's teeth on their consciences. The work is simple and can be done by any trained dentist who has an appreciation of its value to the children and who likes children well enough to serve them.

There is an idea strongly fixed in the minds of many dentists that caring for little children is a terrible chore. They fight and kick and howl and "it is like pulling teeth to get them to sit in a chair and open their mouths." There is much truth in that idea. Many of the children behave like insane patients at mention of a dentist. And they have reason, too.

Should Not Have Tried For 2-2 Break

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The following is an interesting hand which I failed to make:

"South, dealer.

"Neither side vulnerable.

NORTH		EAST
♠ K 5	♠ 10 9 7	♠ 9 4 3	♠ 8
♥ None	♥ A K 8 6	♥ 10 5 4 3 2	♥ 7
♦ A J 10 9 5 4 3	♦ 8	♦ 7	♦ 6
♣ 7 6	♣ 5 4 3 2	♣ 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2	♣ A

"The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spades	2 hearts	3 clubs	Pass
2 spades	3 hearts	4 no trump	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	5 spades	Pass

"We were using the Blackwood convention, hence my five heart bid to show two aces. If North had bid the slam in clubs it would have been easy, but in spades I played the hand for the clubs to break 2-2, and when they did not, I went down one trick. How should the hand be played and is there more than one way to make it?

R. A. G., Chicago."

Presumably, the opening lead was the heart king. The best and safest method of play was to ruff the opening lead in dummy with the low spade, cash the spade king and one high diamond, then ruff a low diamond and draw the adverse trumps. Both as a matter of percentage and because West had overcalled, at least one club honor figured to be in the West position and there was, of course, some likelihood that both honors were there. Thus, declarer should not have tried for a 2-2 club break, but should have relied on two finesses. He should have led a club and, if West played low, put in the nine spot. As it happened, this would have held and, although dummy's club suit would now be killed except for the ace, declarer would not need any other tricks. He would discard one of his hearts on the other diamond honor and concede one heart.

If, on the other hand, when the club was led toward dummy, West split his honors, playing the queen, declarer should let him hold the trick, win any return, and subsequently take another finesse against the West hand.

Another method of play also would succeed—a squeeze against West who would have to hold his heart and club honors. But, since this squeeze would depend on as good a lay of cards as the less ambitious plan outlined above, there was no point in gilding the lily.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

This charming young lady protects her skin beauty by carrying loose powder and a fresh velvet puff each day in an attractive squatty compact. She knows that beauty depends upon clean pores, free of matted powder.

When we speak of "school girl" in copy, we actually refer to all girls of the school age—let us say from fifteen to twenty-one. It makes no difference whether you are a career girl, an office girl, a factory worker, or a stay-at-home. If you come in that age group we speak of you as the "school girl."

During those adolescent years your beauty problems suddenly take on an importance you never before experienced. Several things cause this. You may suffer from a little adolescent acne which causes unsightly blemishes when you yearn for a flawless skin. You may be in love for the first time in your life and you want to be most beautiful for your prince charming! You may be in a group which sponsors gay little mixed parties and you are feeling feminine competition for the first time in your young life. You want to be as attractive as the other girls.

Your job, if you have one, may depend partly on your attractiveness and because you want to succeed you try to be just as attractive as possible. Or your hopes for the future might involve physical beauty—that is, if you desire to be a model, an actress, a social glamour girl. All these reasons, and a great many more, make Beauty a pretty important subject for the "school girl."

And alas, the girl of this age group usually thinks of beauty as a beautiful face! Only the more sophisticated realize that a pretty figure, a charming speaking voice and manner, healthy hair and a sound mind are all necessary elements to the term Beauty. And that's what I want to bring home to you today.

It may sound awfully old-fashioned to your young ears when I say personal attractiveness begins with a clean body, clean skin and a clean mind! Cleanliness is your cardinal rule.

L. you begin with a clean healthy mind, you are beginning right. Like to be healthy, gay, versatile. Meet life willingly and don't grouch. Like to eat your meals on time and eat of the foods you should. Like to get the rest you require, and the exercise. Like the tasks you have and the studies you must embrace. All these make for what I call a "clean" mind—which is really a healthy mind—the foundation to all success and all happiness.

Then think of your body. If you desire it to be clean you will bathe frequently if not every day. You will not allow it to grow too thin or too plump—unless, of course, illness prevents you. Fresh studies will be your love. Your dresses will be fresh also, and your hose.

If you live according to health rules, it will be simple to keep fit. Internal you as fresh as the external you. It is every bit as important for your wonderful body to function regularly each day, as it is for it to be bathed! And all facial beauty depends upon clean skin! Don't slap fresh make-up over a skin which was not washed well with soap and water. Keep your pores free of grime, and let the air and sunshine do their good work. Then blemishes will not be one of your worries! Keep clean and you will grow beautiful!

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you are puzzled about the choice of a gift for a friend or relative, be sure to read this Case Record and see if it can answer your problem. The gifts which I have mentioned today bear psychological dividends throughout the entire lifetime of the recipient.

CASE O-148: Helene G., aged 18, is graduating next term from high school.

"I wish I knew what to buy for a graduating present," a mutual friend despairingly commented.

"Isn't there something out of the ordinary which I could give her,

Many a child in grammar school will show a significant rise in his grades after he has received such a gift.

My five youngsters will hardly slay away from my typewriter at home and even the toddlers want to push the space bar to hear the bell ring when the carriage reaches the end of the line.

If you wish to stimulate a literary and scholastic hunger in a child, buy him a typewriter. Furthermore, typing skill is valuable in business and all persons with the contesting hobby or a desire to write short stories should be equipped with a typewriter.

The printed word looks so much more professional and authoritative in print that novices will be tempted to sit down and try to type a letter even if they have never had access to a machine before.

As an investment in better school grades, more frequent letters for the home folks, and another mercurial virtue in your son or daughter when he applies for a job in the business world, give him a typewriter as a gift and encourage him to learn how to use it.

Correct English Wins Jobs
Another and less expensive gift is a collegiate dictionary. The foundation of social and business success is predicted on skillful use of words.

"Give me the right word and the right accent," stated Joseph Conrad, "and I will move the world."

I would be lost without a dictionary. It is a most useful tool of the brain. It serves as an amplifier of thoughts and a key to correct spelling. It is the supreme court of dictation and good usage.

A man with a limited vocabulary, is likewise limited in his thinking, so don't stifle your mind by a stunted vocabulary. Men with small vocabularies seldom get far in business or the professions.

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on Psychological problems. Write him, in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and a dime to cover printing and mailing costs. Letters and readers' names are never published.

My Neighbor Says—

Make your selection of chrysanthemums now. You can transplant chrysanthemums now if you take along a generous amount of soil and don't disturb the roots too much. Next Spring dig up again and divide as Spring is the best time for dividing chrysanthemums.

A tablespoon or two of tomato soup in gravies gives them delicious flavor. Or you might simmer slices of cold roast beef in a can of condensed tomato soup or pour it over a pot roast in the last hour of cooking.

Cottage cheese may be used in place of cream cheese if it is pressed through a fine sieve to remove the moisture.

Stuff tomatoes with cottage cheese mixed with diced pineapple. The result is a tasty combination.

'Going Steady' Not the Best Idea for Young Girls, Boys

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am a boy of 20, in love with a wonderful girl of 19. We are engaged, but with no prospect of marrying for a long time, and she has got to going with other boys. I love her and she still says she loves me, but she wants me to go with other girls just as she goes with other boys. I won't do that because I don't think it is treating her right. What do you think about it? A. E. S.

Answer:

I think the girl is in the right and that you will be wise to follow her example and go around with other girls. Because that would give both of you a chance to compare each other with other boys and girls, to determine if you have made the right choice and really prefer each other to any one else.

I feel very sure that the custom of "keeping company" in which a boy and girl pair off—often in the schoolroom, and go together to the exclusion of every one else until they are forced into marriage by habit—is responsible for the great number of discontented and unfaithful husbands and wives and the increase in divorce.

This pernicious practice keeps the youngsters from ever getting acquainted with any other girls and boys, or of having the privilege of really choosing their mates. They are bound hand and foot to those they wished on themselves as children and really haven't any idea of how many glamorous people there are outside of their little hidebound circle.

Hence come the tragedies that occur when a married man, who has thought all women as little-minded and nagging and tiresome as the girl he "kept company" with in his adolescence, meets in his maturity the brilliant, entertaining, sympathetic woman with whom he falls madly in love. And when a woman, married to the commonplace, dull boy whom she went with all through her girlhood, finds the man, when it is too late, who is her heart's desire. When you go into a store you don't buy the first article you see whether it fires your fancy or not, or whether it is what you really want or not. You look around and see what is in stock before you make your selection. If the same tactics were applied to picking out husbands and wives it would do more than any other one thing to promote domestic happiness.

For this reason every girl and boy should try to know as many other girls and boys as they possibly can before they make their final choice. They should shop around and give them all the onceover. And if this should cause a lot of break-ups between young couples, that's all to the good, too. For, far better to find out which man or woman you like before marriage than afterwards.

Is It Right for a Girl To Be "Fat" to a Boy?

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am beginning to believe that a girl just can't be pals with a boy. I have been going with one for more than two years and we have had a swell time together. He has a motorcycle about which we are both crazy and we have gone on trips together. We have played around, dancing, sports of all kinds, movies and we have had a lot of fun without spending much money. The one thing I have always liked about our friendship has been the fact that we were not spooney—just chums like boys might be. But now it is different. Stan says he loves me and I just don't love him. He is the best friend in the world, but I know love is a lot more than that because there is another boy whom I feel "that way" about myself. Will I have to break up my friendship with this boy? It will mean loneliness for both of us, because the boy I care for lives far away. Shall I tell Stan how I feel? I hate to because he takes everything so hard. What do you think I should do? MADELINE.

Answer:

You have to be a square shooter with a friend, and there is only one thing you can do. That is to tell the boy frankly and honestly just how you feel about him and that there is some one else whom you love. That is his due. Then if he wants to keep on with your relationship in the hope that you may forget the other boy and come to love him, why, his fate is on his own head.

And he may win out at that, for very often a girl mistakes the charm of novelty that a stranger has for her love, but when it comes to giving up the faithful old friend for him she discovers that it is the old pal who has her heart in his hands, after all.

But you are right in saying that it is very hard for platonic love to exist between a man and a woman. One or the other is almost sure to turn it into a warmer emotion and then somebody gets hurt.

Pick Out an Interesting Conversationist

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man studying for a career and my problem is a girl who is constantly on my mind. When I am with her I have little to say to her of things in general and she has nothing to say to me of any interest. Our conversation usually consists of the same topic—how much we love each other. What shall I do? Shall I stop seeing her or just let nature take its course? PUZZLED MAN.

Well, if you let nature take its course, it will lead you first to the altar and then to the divorce court, because if you marry a girl who bores you before marriage think how intolerably bored you will be after marriage.

Think of the years and years and years in which you will have to sit up of an evening with a woman to whom you have nothing to say and who has nothing to say to you, with whom you cannot discuss the topics of the day, or your own plans and interests, and whose babble makes you wish you were deaf. Can you think of a more dreadful fate?

If I were a young man picking out a wife, the one and indispensable qualification that I should demand in her would be for her to be an entertaining conversationalist.

Children Should Share in Care of Mother

Dear Dorothy Dix—My mother-in-law is a widow, an invalid and penniless. She has four sons and three daughters, all capable of sharing in the expense of her keep, but her daughters insist that it is the daughter-in-law's duty to take care of her and nurse her. What is right in this matter? ADELINE.

Answer: All seven of the children are equally obligated to care for their mother. That is the law of the land as it should be of the heart.

Packaged cookies are very convenient. They can be served quickly alone or "filled" for dessert. Gingersnaps with a cream, yellow or cottage cheese filling go especially well with canned or fresh fruits for dessert or a light lunch with a beverage. The children like them with milk after school.

Meet Mr. Lochinvar

By Marie Blizard

YESTERDAY: Cecily in an agony of shame over the thought that Locke may be married, decides she had better forget him. Even if Locke is free he seems to be a man of no ambition, no future. Trying to be polite to Philip she accompanies him to a movie—sees Locke there.

Chapter 23

SOMETHING DEFINITE
They rose when the house lights went on. Cecily was careful to give all her attention to Philip, not to look in back of her. Unconsciously—and entirely without volition—she was following the age-old recipe: be gay and he'll be jealous.

She was gay. She chattered easily, brightly, laughed at Philip's sallies until he felt he was a very amusing fellow and that she was beginning to appreciate him. They sat in the window of the drugstore and ate ice-cream.

Lightly, seemingly indifferently, her eyes swept the small groups coming into the store, driving or strolling past.

She didn't find him. Perhaps he hadn't even seen that she was there. There was no reason then why she should permit Philip to take her arm so possessively when they left the drugstore. But she no longer cared. Why always protest about everything?

Locke had seen her. He told her so the next day.

She was wrapping up a package for a customer when he came in. She said, "Hello," casually, and, "I'll be with you in a moment."

"No hurry," he answered and turned the pages of a book idly.

The customer was maddeningly slow about paying for his purchase. Cecily saw him to the door, propelling him with her will to leave, praying hopefully that no one else would come in. It was Thursday, a busy day at the shop, busy for one of those queer psychological reasons no one could figure out.

The customer, almost to the door, stopped and picked up another book. Cecily smiled, looked at Locke and, catching his eye, made a little despairing gesture. Before she turned back, she was uncomfortably aware that for the first time he hadn't answered her gesture. As though the continuity between them had been broken.

When at last she had bowed, smiled and almost pushed the unwanted customer out of the shop, she turned around with a gay little smile for a welcome on her lips.

Locke didn't look at her. Sensitive—exquisitely sensitive—to every nuance of their relationship, Cecily felt instantly that something had happened. Something that was not merely his withdrawing because of what had happened before. This was something new. Something definite had happened.

"Selling something today?" she asked with attempted lightness.

"No just a little social call. Thought, like the minister, I'd drop in for a bit of local gossip and a cup of tea. Are you in both?"

"That depends," she answered, relieved at his words. She pretended that there was nothing new in his attitude. "Would you settle for some ginger cookies and a glass of milk? That's what I'd planned for my tea. I'm going to a big party tonight and I've got lots of work to do here."

"I'll clear along," he said at once. At once she said, "Oh, please stay. Let's have it in back."

In back was the screened-off small space that Cecily used for her "office."

'A Long Story'
They perched companionably on the sturdy table with a pitcher of milk between them and nibbled ginger cookies.

"Do you think a woman should keep her past from her husband?" Locke said surprisingly.

Cecily almost choked over her biscuit. "W-what?"

"Not that I really care. I'm mak-

Trucks, Seymour In Crucial Game

Second Round Championship Hangs on Outcome of Contest

START AT 2:15

Dick Weisgerber Expected to Take Hill For Row's Team

CLINTONVILLE—The winner of the second half title of the Northern State league will be determined Sunday afternoon here in a game between the Clintonville Trucks and Seymour. The nine ended the schedule deadlocked for first position and a single game playoff was arranged to determine the victory.

Should the Trucks win they will be undisputed champions for the copped the first half pennant earlier in the season. Last year practically the same situation occurred. Seymour and Clintonville tied for first position and the final game of the season saw the Trucks defeat Seymour to win the second half honors and then go on to annex the crown by winning two out of three from two Rivers. Should Seymour win Sunday a 3-game play off will be necessary to decide the flag winner.

Manager Len Goerlinger has been grooming his Trucks proteges all year for this important encounter. Because the season has been prolonged the Trucks will be minus two regulars after Sunday's game. Rex Krull, southpaw pitcher, and Ray Trimble, first sacker, who are leaving for college. Goerlinger will have to find two more men to fill the vacancies if a playoff is necessary.

The schedule was supposed to have been completed Labor day but rain postponed the game between the Trucks and Green Bay the day previous and it wasn't played until last Sunday. Clintonville, had to blast its way to a victory over two former squad members who were on the mound for the Bays. The Trucks got a total of 16 hits to score an impressive 8 to 3 victory. Manager Goerlinger's boys also pulled out a stinging lineup and displayed championship ball.

Seymour, on the other hand, played a practice game with New London and took a shellacking. The Londoners have held the ax over Seymour's head every time they've met this season just about the way Seymour has had the jinx on the Trucks. Manager Bill Row's squad has defeated Clintonville seven out of eight times this year. Had Seymour been able to upset New London just once during second half it would have won the second half title and no playoff would be necessary.

SEYMOUR PRIMED
Seymour—Three practice sessions during the last week have the Seymour baseball team on edge for its game with Clintonville at Clintonville Sunday afternoon. The second round championship of the Northern State league hangs on the outcome of the contest. Play will start at 2:15.

Smiley Nicodem, outfielder, and one of Seymour's most timely hitters, will be in shape for the game. He injured an ankle at New London last week but it has responded to treatment and he has indicated it is fit.

Manager Bill Row says he'll start Dick Weisgerber against the Trucks. Usually Richard has had only to toss his glove onto the hill to beat the Trucks. He hasn't been doing so well in other starts recently, but he's nearly always right against Clintonville. Arnie Kelly will replace him if he stumbles.

Powell will be at short and lead off with Nicodem batting second and playing right field. Kroening at second base and batting third. Bowers in center and batting cleanup. Eggert at first and in the fifth batting slot. Penzenstadler in left field. Lamers catching, and Zelinski third base.

Chicago—Tiger Jack Fox, 181, Spokane, Wash., knocked out Orlandus Trotter, 171, Chicago, (2).

Aldrich, Goldberg Expected To Show With Cardinals in Packers Opening Game Sunday

GREEN BAY, Wis.—All-Americans of last fall and previous seasons will abound on the City stadium turf here Sunday afternoon when the Green Bay Packers open their National Professional league season against the Chicago Cardinals. The game will start at 2 p. m.

In the Chicago lineup will be two of the most widely publicized players of the past season—Al Aldrich, the center from Texas Christian university, and Marshall Goldberg, Pitt's great back who was an all-American halfback in his junior year and received the same honor at fullback last fall.

On the Packers side getting their first taste of the pro league will be Francis Twell, all-American guard at Minnesota last season, Charles Brock of Nebraska who pressed Aldrich for center honors, and a number of others who were named to honor teams in various sections. Most of the group have seen action on all-star teams and with the Packers against the South-west All-Stars, but Sunday will be their first test where it will count in the standings.

Cincinnati Stopped by Giants After 6 Straight Wins; Cubs, Phils Split

CINCINNATI—The Red's luck frayed out again yesterday when darkness cut the second game of a doubleheader to seven innings and helped the New York Giants win 4 to 3 after Cincinnati had taken the opener 10 to 6 for its sixth straight triumph.

This development enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to shave the Reds' National league lead half a notch to 31 games with a bitter 1 to 0 decision over the Boston Bees in 14 innings.

Rain interrupted the first game at Cincinnati for some 30 minutes and set the second session behind schedule. But this was only part of the Reds' troubles. After four shutout innings by Whitey Moore, Bob Seeds singled and Tom Hefey laid down a sacrifice bunt for the Giants. Eddie Joost, covering first, let the throw through him and Seeds not only scored, but Hefey reached third and then came home on a single by Alex Kampouris.

The Reds laid down an 18 hit barrage in the first game to overpower the Giants, who nevertheless marred Johnny Vander Meer's first start since Aug. 9 by batting him out in the fourth.

Two Bad Breaks Hurt Menasha High And It Loses to Oshkosh Indians, 14 to 0

BY RANDY HAASE
MENASHA—A big Oshkosh High school football team capitalized on two breaks to score a 14 to 0 victory over the Menasha High school gridirers in the first game of the season Friday night at Oshkosh. A recovered fumble on the 26-yard line and an intercepted pass with a thrilling 60-yard run gave Oshkosh its scores.

Numerous substitutions and rests because of the heat made the game slow. After Menasha had received the opening kickoff and got a first down when Oshkosh was penalized for holding, the Jays finally kicked from their own 35.

Luker, husky Oshkosh back, electrified the crowd when he swept over his left end for 50 yards on the first Oshkosh offensive play. He took the ball from the Oshkosh 29 to the Menasha 21 yard line and very nearly went all of the way behind expert blocking.

Jays Fumble
The Jays rallied and stopped four plays short of a first down, taking the ball on their own 16. With Sheleski doing most of the ball carrying, the Jays drove to their own 21 for a first down. On the next play Drexler fumbled a low pass from center, Oshkosh recovered and had its first break.

Having gotten position, the Indians needed no further breaks to score. They took six plays to go the 26 yards, all power smashes into the line. Luker made 8 yards, Dietzo added six for a first down, Hergert picked up four, Luker made it first down on the 3 yard line, Dietzo took another crack at the line and Roth finally carried it over. Luker added the point from placement just before the end of the quarter.

For the next two quarters play was fairly even and stayed well in the center of the field. Oshkosh had an advantage in punting and was content to protect its lead. After four exchanges of punts, the Jays picked up a first down by rushing, but had to kick when a completed pass on fourth down failed to gain the necessary yardage.

Oshkosh picked up a first down, but recovered a fumble with a five-yard loss and punted. Sheleski returned to the 45 yard line and the Jays started driving in the closing minutes of the half. A first down on a run by Sheleski was followed by a penalty and again passes failed to gain the necessary yards.

Indians in Trouble
The Indians were in trouble early in the third quarter when Luker fumbled but recovered with a 12 yard loss on the Oshkosh 21. He punted out of bounds on the Menasha 37 to get out of trouble.

The Jays had their biggest scoring opportunity shortly before the end of the third quarter. Oshkosh moved the ball from the 40 to the 47 in three plays but Williams threw the ball away on fourth down when Luker went back to punt. The ball sailed over Luker's head and he was downed on the 23, a loss of 25 yards, where the Jays took the ball.

A gain of two yards, a 5-yard penalty, and a couple of incomplete passes and the Bluejays threat was over for the time being. Oshkosh punted out of danger. Robinson intercepted the only pass attempted by Oshkosh to give the Bluejays position on the Oshkosh 45 yard line, but a fumble and a penalty ended that drive before it was even well started.

Unable to gain consistently against the heavy Oshkosh line, the Jays took to passes, particularly from a punt formation with Sheleski throwing. They completed five out of 20 attempted during the game. After passes had given the Jays first down, Sheleski threw a long one that Bixby gathered in his arms on his own 40.

The Oshkosh team threw up some hasty blocking. Bixby twisted through the Menasha team and then scooted away down the sidelines for the second Oshkosh touchdown. He went 60 yards. Luker again added the extra point.

Passes Fall Jays
The Jays came back once more. A penalty and a pass gave them a first down. Another penalty and a run by Sheleski gave them a first Turn to page 13

WEGA WINS FIRST FOOTBALL GAME, 14 TO 0

Weyauvega High school showed its first 6-man football team yesterday afternoon in a game with Bear Creek and came away with a 14 to 0 win. Nelson scored two touchdowns and G. Hertz made the extra points.

In the above picture, L. Redfield, Wega back, is shown carrying the ball on the extreme right. Nelson is the boy without a number just ahead of Redfield. The Bear Creek players are unidentified. Others on the Wega team were G. Hertz, right end, V. Hertz, center, L. Grancorblitz, left end, and Howard Holcombe, quarter.

Green Bay West Is Victor Over Marinette

Green Bay—Sheer driving power propelled Green Bay West over Marinette High's goal line three times Friday night for an 18 to 7 victory.

From the opening kickoff, West marched steadily down the field. Carried to within 4 yards of the last marker via the efforts of Royal Dessart and Kluchski, Jerome (Mike) Powers drove over. Powers repeated in the second quarter.

A strong second half comeback saw the invaders' Delmore lateral to Knutson, who skirted end from the 35 for a touchdown. Brown kicked the point.

On a reverse, Kluchski tallied from the 32 for West's last mark.

Net Youngsters In Semi-Finals At Forest Hills

Riggs, Bromwich, Van Horn and Joe Horn Survive in National Meet

FOREST HILLS, N. Y.—(P)—Four tennis infants commanded the stadium courts in today's semi-finals of the national singles tournament—the youngest semi-final field this old tournament has ever seen.

Wesly Van Horn, apparently destined to be America's next great star, will pit his 19 years and blazing stroke repertoire against Jack Bromwich, Australia's unorthodox 20-year-old, in the day's most promising battle.

In the other, Bobby Riggs, a veteran at 21 and midshipman Joe Hunt, just 20, will offer a re-match of their feud.

Defeats Sabin
Van Horn earned his way to the round of four with a five-set victory over Wayne Sabin, who previously ousted Adrian Quist in one of the tourney's major upsets.

Bromwich, possibly the world's best amateur player, out-angled the Washington mathematic tutor, Gil Hunt 6-3, 6-4, 6-1. The other Hunt, Joe, outplayed Don McNeill 6-4, 15-13, 8-6, 6-2, in a match carried over from the previous day.

Riggs already had reached the semi-final round and didn't play yesterday.

In the feminine section, Alice Marble meets Virginia Wolfenden and England's Kay Stammers plays a former champion, Helen Jacobs.

Horseshoe Meet Reaches Finals

Tossers Will Compete For Championships Sunday at Pierce Park

THE clanking of horseshoes, heard at the Pierce park courts almost every evening for the last six weeks or two months, will mount to a new high starting at 8 o'clock Sunday morning when the finals in all classes start and continue to approximately 6 o'clock in the evening.

The Class B event will open at 8 o'clock with 50 points as game. It will be a round robin tourney. At 11 o'clock the Class C pitchers are scheduled and will toss 21 points for a game. Class A takes the courts at 1:30 in the afternoon for the central Fox valley championship and the George Walter Adler Brau trophy, a gold cup. Distribution of trophies, awards and prizes will take place at 5:30.

A feature event is scheduled at 4:30 when the Class A winners, first and second, will tangle with the Winnebago county champions, Lawrence and Carl Riede, Oshkosh. They will toss two singles matches and one doubles match.

Qualifiers in the various events and entered in tomorrow's finals follow:

Galento Cuts Down Nova

Earns Another Crack at Title With 14th Round Technical K. O.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Tony Galento was back on top of the world again today, yelling for another chance at the heavyweight championship and likely to get it, following his bloody 14th round technical knockout of Lou Nova last night in municipal stadium.

Regarded by a majority of critics as easy prey for the powerful Californian, round Tony came back to give Nova a fearful punching, knock him down four times and forced Referee George Blake to stop it in 2:44 of the 14th. Both fighters looked like they had been hit by trucks at the finish. For the last five rounds the crowd was imploring Blake to stop it.

Tony led all the way, from the instant he landed a terrific left hook on Nova's jaw in the second round. He would have won by a wide margin on points if the fight had gone the limit. Nova's efforts to box him were futile. Every time he started a left jab, his best weapon, Tony nearly knocked his head off.

Tony Floors Nova
In the third round, Tony clipped Nova to the canvas for a count of one. In the eighth he had him down again for no count, and in the final chapter Lou was on the floor twice for three and eight before Blake took pity on him. Tony was staggered a couple of times here and there, but he never went down.

From the third round on, Nova bled furiously from cuts around his right eye. His face was a crimson blotch. One of Nova's straight lefts drove Tony's teeth through his lower lip midway of the carnage, and from there on everybody in the ring, including the referee, was smeared with the claret.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, sitting at the ringside for the first time in his career, fidgeted and talked to himself as Tony made a shambles of his beautiful "white hope." There had been no doubt in Mike's mind that Lou would be the one to fight the winner of next week's battle between Joe Louis and Bob Pastor in Detroit.

Now it was a question whether he will want to put Galento in the championship ring again, especially with Louis, but the weight of public opinion might force his hand.

Flying Dutchmen At Two Rivers for Sunday's Contest

Little Chute Gridders Were Defeated in Opener Last Week

LITTLE CHUTE — The Little Chute Flying Dutchmen, football team, will invade Two Rivers Rambler Athletic club.

The Ramblers have a powerful team this season and a battle royal is expected. The Dutchmen dropped a 12 to 0 decision to the Manitowoc Gaels last Sunday but the loss doesn't reveal the true strength of the Chuters. The first score came as the result of a long pass which went over the head of one of the local ends to fall in the arms of an opponent. The second score was the result of a poor bit of headwork in the last 20 seconds of the second quarter. The Chuters attempted to kick on their own 3-yard line and the ball was blocked with the opponents recovering and scoring a touchdown.

The second half had Coach Ernie Miron ripping the players open with a verbal attack which had them raring. They then held their opponents scoreless and outplayed them.

The squad will leave Little Chute at 11 a. m. Sunday, dressing at the community club at Two Rivers. The game is scheduled for 2:15.

The first home game will be played on Oct. 1. The Dutchmen took to Merrill on Sept. 23 for a night contest. The opponent for the opening home contest will be either Sheboygan or Two Rivers. Bay Mills, Michigan. Two other home contests will have Two Rivers here on Oct. 22 and Manitowoc here on Oct. 29.

Badgers Scrimmage Today: Plan 4 Teams

MADISON — (AP) — The first scrimmage of the season was on the program today for University of Wisconsin Coach Harry Stuhldreher's gridiron hopefuls who open up their 1939 campaign in two weeks, meeting Marquette University here. The squad which has spent the last week in conditioning exercises and light practice in near-record breaking heat, will be divided into four teams.

Although lineups will be revised constantly, it is expected candidates who appeared on the "first string" during the past week will get the opportunity to work as a unit for a time at least.

New plays were issued at yesterday's practice when Stuhldreher boosted Don Miller, Dixon, H. I. sophomore back, to the first string, right halfback post in place of Bill Schmitt, of Madison. Gordon Gile, of Shorewood and Al Lorenz, of Oak Park, Ill., replaced Ralph Moeller and John Loehrke at ends.

Hollywood — Lou Salica, 1174, New York, outpainted Manuel Ortiz, 116, Los Angeles, (10).

John Walter of the Green Bay Press Gazette says East and West will clash, as usual, for the Valley conference title on Nov. 11 at Green Bay. Perhaps West but East will be just an interested spectator, other reports indicate.

Dan J. Considine, who used to live in Appleton and played a lot of golf at Riverview, is so interested in the Packers that he has subscribed to the Green Bay Press-Gazette during the grid season. He's at Champaign, Ill., now.

Appleton Motocycle club will offer thrills and entertainment for sports fans Sunday afternoon at the O'Connor farm on Highway 41 near Butte des Morts. The club is holding a tourist trophy event sanctioned by the American Motocycle club.

Bob Johnson, Athletics—Three-run homer in first inning accounted for all A's runs in victory over White Sox.

Steve Sundra, Yanks—Earned his 10th triumph with six-hit pitching against Tigers and batted in three runs with double and single.

Ernie Lombardi, Reds, and Tom Hafeys Giants—Former hit two doubles and single to lead 18-hit attack in first game of double-header; later Hafey's sacrifice set up Giants' first hit in first base hit of year to start two runs in nightcap and his double in third inning turned in tie brought in another.

DON HUHNT rallied a 220 game and Cy Lippert whipped a 594 series for high individual marks during Merchant league matches at Arcade alleys last night. Schuessler Weatherstrips collected team honors with 1,010 and 2,913.

Al Brandt's Tavern was the only squad to score a 3-game win, victing being Hughes and Bendit. Mike Sakallaris led the way for the winners with a 560 series and C. DeYoung registered 212. Ray Loppnow topped the losers with a 479 series.

Coca-Cola won two games from Checker Cab with George Telig plugging 201 and 515. Elmer Seig paced the losing quint with 528.

Checker Lunch picked up two games from Clover Farm Stores as Leo Chertoff batted 463. Clarence Brockman had 464 to pace the losers.

Leath Team Wins
Two games were credited to Leath Furniture company in a match with Hooks and Tony. Harold Nelson grooved 202 and 553 for the winners while Cy Lippert series 594 with games of 202 and 201 and T. Natrop counted 203 for the losing five.

Wisconsin Auto Wrecking company downed Steens Transfer in two games. H. Theil headed the victors with a 484 total while Max Kneip sparked the losers with a 502.

Dick Wenzlaff drilled a 214 game and 549 series as Clark's Cleaners collected two games from Telephone Company. High for the losers was Jim Richmond with 447.

Schuessler Weatherstrips copped two from Weyenberg Dairy as Don Huhn cracked his 220 game and a 586 series. Mel Buck hit 213 and Bud Braeger bagged a 213. John Foster kept the losers in the running with a 207 game and 567 series and V. Horn rolled 202.

Miller High Life scored a 2-game win over John's Hatters as Al Roehl tripled 462. Dr. Kolb topped the losers with 521.

GALENTO WINS BY TECHNICAL K. O.

In a gory and bloody spectacle in the Philadelphia Municipal stadium, Tony Galento, the Orange, N. J. barkeeper, won a fourteenth round technical knockout over Lou Nova, young California heavyweight. Both were smeared with blood as the bout was ended after two minutes 44 seconds of the fourteenth round. Twice during the fight both fighters were on the floor. This picture of Nova clutching at Galento's knees from his position on the canvas, was taken in the third round after Tony had floored Lou and just before he stumbled to the resin himself. The referee is George Blake.

BEING a glutton for punishment, we went over to Oshkosh last evening to watch Menasha and Oshkosh high school grid players and thereby started what will be three games for us before sundown Sunday.

But it was an interesting contest that showed both teams have possibilities despite the fact Menasha dropped a 14 to 0 decision. The Jays will meet few if any teams in conference play as heavy as Oshkosh. And Coach Red Martin of the Indians had more good reserves than Nate Calder. They told in the 85 degrees heat.

Oshkosh won because its big line pushed the Jays out of the way on the touchdown march, and because Menasha's running attack couldn't push the big Indian forwards out of the way. Had the Jays used their passes earlier they might have done things. Their efforts looked good in the final quarter.

Indications are Oshkosh will cause trouble for Valley conference teams. Luker is playing his second year as a regular and he's a fine all around boy. His kicking was a big advantage over Menasha last night and he can run as fast as any performer who'll oppose him. Too, he's rugged, likes his football and plays hard. Incidentally he's a drop kicker of much better than ordinary ability.

The baseball season will give a dying kick tomorrow afternoon at Clintonville when the Truakers and Seymour tangle in a playoff game for the second round honors in the Northern State league. A victory for the Truakers will bring them the league pennant for the second straight year. A victory for Seymour will make necessary a 3-game series to decide the title.

There have been reports during the last month that Clintonville was trying to throw the race into a playoff. But reports from Clintonville indicate that isn't true for the Truakers will have to get a couple replacements for lads who won't be around after Sunday's game. They'll be returning to school in various sections and their loss will hurt.

On paper, Seymour should have a slight edge for it has bumped the Truakers seven out of eight times this year. But pressure will decide the game. The squad that goes out and plays naturally will have the edge and probably come away the winner. And finally, there's the question of breaks and you can't do a thing about them.

Tony Popp, Appleton, who reported for a workout with the Packers after a stay at Brooklyn, remained only one day and left to try his luck with the Cincinnati Bengals.

Manitowoc High school has a team composed largely of seniors with a junior as understudy to each boy. That means the Ships will be tougher 'next year season. After being kicked around for several years, the Ships are going to be up among 'em or else.

The Brooklyn Dodgers will hold a baseball school at Fond du Lac starting Oct. 2. There's also a possibility the Dodgers will hook up with the Fond du Lac team in the new State league.

Nubs Kleinke, Fond du Lac hurler with the St. Louis Cardinal system, has been shipped from Columbus to Houston. Kleinke formerly was in the International league.

Fond du Lac high gridgers will have new uniforms this season. They'll be gold colored pants and green jerseys. The pants will be of the same type.

Fox river valley conference sports scribes will meet at Fond du Lac at 6:30 Monday night at Hotel Retlaw and swap information. All have promised to be there except Sheboygan.

Muzzle Tigers by 10 to 3; Circuit Blow Beats Chicago Sox

NEW YORK — (AP) — With Steve Sundra starring on the mound and at bat, the Yankees muzzled the Detroit Tigers, 10 to 3, yesterday and moved within half a game of clinching their fourth consecutive American league pennant.

The chunky right-hander, undefeated this season, scored his tenth triumph with six hit hurling and in addition doubled a run home in the second inning and singled with the bases loaded for two others in the fifth.

With all the Yankees' play was spotty. They collected 13 hits off Schoolboy Rowe, Archie McKain and Rookie Floyd Giebell, but showed the effects of their three game losing streak as Joe Dimaggio, Bill Dickey and Babe Dahlgren all went hitless.

Joe Gordon slammed two doubles and a single and Frank Crosetti lashed out four singles to lead the Yankee offensive. Gordon also accepted 15 fielding chances flawlessly—11 assists and four putouts—to tie the league record for second basemen.

Rowe got into trouble in the third inning by issuing two passes after two were out. George Selkirk singled in a run and Gordon doubled two more across. New York was never headed.

A two base error by Crosetti and two infield outs gave the Tigers their first run in the second. McKain homered in the fifth and Hank Greenberg and Pinky Higgins linked doubles for another in the ninth.

BOMER BEATS CHI SOX
Philadelphia — (AP) — A three run homer by Bob Johnson and tight pitching by Lynn Nelson gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 3 to 2 victory over the Chicago White Sox in the second game of their series yesterday.

Johnson's circuit blow, his twenty-second of the year, came in the first inning after Waldo Moses had doubled and Al Brandt singled to open the inning. After that Bill Dietrich settled down and pitched good ball until a spell of wildness forced his retirement with two out in the eighth.

The Sox did not score an earned run off Nelson. Both their tallies coming in as the result of Mackinn misplays.

Carpenter Class

Meeting Monday

Regular Vocational Night Courses for Adults Begin Oct. 16

Kaukauna—The first night class at Kaukauna Vocational school will be organized Monday evening at the school according to William T. Sullivan, director. The class will be for master and journeyman carpenters, and will last 12 weeks. The regular night program for adults will open on Monday, Oct. 16.

Full classes are now well under way, although additional enrollees still are being received. Girls employed on the NYA program attend food, marketing and sewing classes every Tuesday, while NYA boys are divided into three units, one unit working while the other two attend school. They study machine shop, woodwork, foundry and welding.

Foundry, machine shop, welding and blacksmithing apprentices meet each Tuesday afternoon. Anyone engaged in the trade of welding is welcome to come to the 3 o'clock Tuesday session.

Pigeon Fanciers Will Enter Birds in 2 Races

Kaukauna—Kaukauna pigeon fanciers are making plans to enter birds in two special young bird races from Britt Iowa and Norfolk, Neb., on Saturday, Sept. 23. Birds will be entered by Reuter brothers and Joseph Lefevre, with another likely to compete also. No club is allowed to have more than three members fly pigeons in this race.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbership on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Plan Operetta at Shiocton School

Cast Selected for Production Scheduled Last Week in October

Shiocton—Practice has been started on the all-school operetta to be given the third week in October. The cast includes: David Brooker, Rosan Harminath, Mary Santkuy, Harold Conrad, Wesley Poole, Dorothy Pooler, Ivo Peterson, Ruby Last, Harold Wittuhn, Virginia Eberhardt, Caroline Middleton, Ardy Ames, Marilyn Schwand, Audrey Keenan, Miss Mary Agnes Doroth, English instructor, and Miss Dorothy Grehn, commercial instructor, are directing the production. There will also be a large chorus comprised of the glee clubs and other musical organizations. This will be the first operetta to be presented at the high school for many years.

The Shiocton chapter of Future Farmers of America held its monthly meeting Wednesday.

The freshmen and new sophomores were guests at the meeting. The boys practiced the ritual for the opening and closing ceremonies of the meetings. A short program was arranged by David Brooker and refreshments by Melvin Jarcho.

Practice judging work is being done by the agricultural classes. Later an elimination contest will be held to pick dairy cattle, crops and potato judging teams for the state contest at Madison Oct. 6 and 7.

The Future Farmers also have part interest in the refreshment stand on the grounds during the homecoming Saturday and Sunday at Shiocton.

Forty-six members are enrolled in the agriculture classes this year. This is an increase over last year.

The Home Economics classes are now studying courtesy, good grooming, food preservation and family nutrition.

The assembly of the high school was entertained Tuesday by Huntington and company. This program consisted of all the arts and tricks of a magician.

All boys of the local high school who wished to take part in athletics were recently examined by Dr. LaCroix and Dr. Wilkes. Their visitor was also tested. Fifty-five high school boys and 13 grade pupils were given the examination. The boys, with few exceptions, took out travel insurance.

The magazine campaign is again in full swing at Shiocton. From 30 to 50 per cent of the sale price goes toward school expenses. This year the student body has been divided into two Indian tribes: the Potawatomies, headed by Chief Sylvia Hall, and the Kickapoes led by Ruby Last. Both tribes will fight it out to see which can collect the most "scalps." David Brooker is business manager. The students hope to pass their record mark of 75 subscriptions of last year.

Community Meeting Is Conducted at Northport School

Royalton—The first community meeting of the season was held at the Northport schoolhouse Thursday evening. Officers are: President, Willis Eldridge; secretary, Mrs. Del Ortel; treasurer, Mrs. Clarence Walker.

Week-end Digest of Business Activity In Appleton and Vicinity

Old Line Life in Strong Position; Local Office Offers Full Service

The Old Line Life Insurance Company of America, now in its 30th year, is in an enviable financial position with a margin of safety considerably higher than that of the largest insurance companies in the country. At present, figures show, the company's margin of safety is $111.00 for each $100.00 of legal reserves and liabilities. The average for the largest insurance companies in the country is $105.55 for each $100.00.

The ratio of assets to liabilities is one of the best measures of a life insurance company's strength, and Old Line Life occupies a prominent position among the American life companies from the standpoint of management policy, financial service and financial stability. Commenting on the company, the Life Insurance Almanac says, "Backed by men of solid experience in the production of new business, the conservation of old business and the sound financing which is fundamental to any insurance company, the Old Line Life is a credit to its officers and the life insurance business in general."

The Appleton office for Old Line Life is located at 305 Insurance building, D. P. Steinberg, Jr., is general agent for Outagamie and Winnebago counties. He led the entire Old Line Life field force in paid-for personal business for the month of August, according to John E. Reilly, president of the company.

The Appleton office is ready to help any policy-owner with his problems. It writes a complete line of annuities, life insurance and accident and health coverage. A telephone call to 1070 will bring a competent representative to discuss — without obligation — these problems and render all necessary service.

Mr. Steinberg announces that he seeks men in Winnebago county who are interested in Selling Old Line Life in either Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha or Omro, on a full or part time basis. Appointments for discussing the possibilities of such a connection can be arranged by calling the Appleton office. A full training course is available to new men who wish to make life insurance selling their life's work.

Business Needs Selling Tool of Bauer Printing

Good Craftsmanship Aided by New, Larger Headquarters

It is a queer business that can do without selling tools of some sort, believes the Bauer Printing Company, now definitely settled and in full operation at its new and modern headquarters, 123 S. Appleton street, downstairs.

Perhaps the best and most generally accepted of these is effective printing, says the Bauer firm. Booklets, advertising pieces in the nature of broadsides, folders, attractive business letterheads and scores of other similar forms of sales aids make the job of the salesman more effective and make more certain the chances of converting prospects into customers.

Silent salesmen, printed pieces of this nature are often termed because they continue to sell the product long after the salesmen are closed and the customer is definitely out of sight. It is good advice, therefore, Bauer's believe, to urge every businessman to make an immediate inventory of present printed selling pieces to determine whether the nature, variety, and supply of these selling tools are adequate to do the very best kind of a selling job.

Prompt attention to this matter now will make it possible to bring this material up to its maximum usefulness and have it ready to do its share of work during the heavy fall and winter buying season which will soon be here.

The new and larger headquarters of the Bauer firm with its additional printing equipment permits more efficient handling of a greater amount of work and inquiries for estimates on all types of printing are now invited. The phone number is 587.

HERE MONDAY

Retailers and dispensers of liquors in Appleton are practicing up on their best neighborly handshakes in anticipation of the good will visit here Monday of Harry E. Wilken, one of the famous distilling family of Wilkens of Alladin, Pennsylvania.

Although still a young man, Harry is reported to have supervised the production and bottling of nearly twenty million bottles of his family's whiskey, widely known as The Wilken Family blended whiskey.

Retailers here say that Harry has always modestly given all the credit for the popularity of this brand to the use of the Wilken family's personal recipe, which was adopted by his father, Harry E. Wilken, Sr., the distiller who had the distinction of personally distilling more than 480,000,000 gallons of whiskey during his lifetime, a record which is believed to surpass the lifetime achievement of any other distiller in the world.

Kapuskask, Canada, visited Tuesday by Mrs. Bongers sister Mrs. Joe Vandenberg.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen King of Chicago visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vandenberg, Wednesday. Mrs. King formerly was Miss Elma Vandenberg.

The choir of St. Paul's church will start practicing carols and hymns next week for Christmas.

Get Ton of Free Ice Under Lutz' Coolerator Buying Arrangement

Approximately 165 days of free ice service which is well over a ton of ice, or in other words, free ice service until March 1, is the outstanding offer now of the Lutz Ice Company. A generous proposition, people are saying, and especially so when it is considered that each Coolerator is being sold at its regular price with a ten-day free trial offer included.

Large family size Coolerators for example, may be purchased at the present time from the Lutz Ice Company at the low price of $82.50 and the old box. This liberal deal includes installation, ice-cuber, ten-day free trial, free ice until March 1, no carrying charge, small monthly payments, and 10 per cent discount for cash.

It is therefore, clear that the time to make this purchase is now. Act promptly Lutz' advises, and gain the advantage of the most number of free ice service days. Selection of the type of Coolerator desired may be made at the Lutz showroom, 306 N. Superior street, where models ranging from the small apartment size to the large commercial units are on display.

Hundreds of Coolerator owners know how well it fits into thrifty, efficient homemaking. These happy users testify to the fact that foods stored in a Coolerator are not covered by any kind of refrigeration, some other types of refrigeration, contents are left in an atmosphere of fresh, washed, constantly circulating air, retaining, therefore, all of their original freshness.

Of interest, particularly to business firms, is Lutz' complete line of air-conditioners, display counters, water coolers, vegetable display cases, ice cream freezers, dry bottle coolers and commercial refrigerators. Units of this kind, purchased from the Lutz firm, are giving satisfactory service to many users today throughout this area.

For high quality fuel, all popular brands, pure manufactured ice, or a 10-day free trial of a new Coolerator with free ice until March 1, 1940, it is only necessary to phone 2, the Lutz Ice Company.

QUEEN OF SEARS' CELEBRATION

Velda Wilson, 19, a telephone operator in Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s retail warehouse in Chicago, who today was crowned "Queen" of that concern's 53rd anniversary celebration. Miss Wilson was elevated to this royal position as the result of winning a poll conducted among her 50,000 fellow employees. As part of her official duties she will soon spend a festive week at San Francisco's Golden Gate Exposition.

Sears' Employees Name 'Queen' for 53rd Celebration

Chicago Girl Gets Top Honors; Leaves for West Coast Soon

A beautiful blonde telephone operator in Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s retail warehouse in Chicago today exchanged her head phone for a crown and began a 15 day reign as "queen" of that concern's 53rd anniversary celebration.

Queen Velda Wilson, 19, won her right to this royal title as the result of winning a poll conducted among her 50,000 fellow employees in all parts of the country. The "Anniversary Queen" contest is an annual event sponsored by the Sears News-Graphic, the company's employee publication.

Accompanied by her mother the "queen" will start an immediate tour of some of the Sears retail units, ending up in San Francisco where she will spend a festive week at the Golden Gate Exposition.

"From the viewpoint of Sears people the annual 'Queen contest' is one of the most exciting things about our anniversary celebration," explained C. T. Teel, manager of Sears store here.

"Several hundred girls entered this year's contest and the 10 finalists were selected by a distinguished judging committee composed of John Barrymore, the nation's leading romantic actor; Glen Gray, leader of the well known Casa Loma orchestra, and lovely June Travis, who has found fame and fortune via the screen and other waves. Final decision as to who should wear the queenly crown, then rested with the Sears employees."

Conflict Abroad Enhances Value of Hawaiian Islands

Babson Says They Constitute 'Hidden Assets,' America's Rhine

BY ROGER BABSON
Honolulu—With the big guns barking in Europe and Asia, Honolulu assumes an importance as a part of our military defenses which cannot be over-emphasized. The Hawaiian Islands are our "hidden assets" and our Rhine. With the U-Boats again prowling the oceans, the United States will become the Number One shipping and carrying nation of the world. Now, even more than before, Honolulu becomes a tremendously valuable port as a great clearing and supply house for ocean shipping. Furthermore, the war means more tourists for Hawaii, better prices for her pineapples and sugar, and more spending on her fortifications.

I have traveled this old world east to west, but I have never seen such a beautiful spot as these Islands. I have often been asked "Where would you live if dependent upon raising your own food, making your own clothing, and providing your own shelter?" Up to the present time I have answered: "I really do not know—I believe I would starve almost anywhere."

Now, however, I can answer definitely and confidently that I would settle down in the Hawaiian Islands! I am not an expert on Bible history, but during the past few days I have been wondering if the Garden of Eden may not have been located out here.

Land For Small Farms
Not only have the islands a wonderful climate, beautiful scenery, and every natural advantage, but there is yet a large amount of fertile land suitable for small farms. Three weeks ago today, I was in

Use Time Wisely During Fall, Says Van Zeeland Firm

Learn to Play Musical Instrument Easily and Thriftily

Shorter days — stormy days — these are some of the prospects as Wisconsin finds Autumn's arrival less than a week away. Probably one of the greatest problems, and one of the least considered ones, is the matter of using spare time created by changing seasons, to the best advantage.

One of the best ways to use surplus time productively, says the Van Zeeland Music Co., 128 N. Appleton street, is to learn to play a musical instrument. The Van Zeeland firm has had outstanding success with students whose ages extend from below the teen level to grown people with children of their own.

There are two basic reasons for this success. First, Van Zeeland's advanced methods of instruction make learning a pleasure instead of a dreary task. Once a student has shown his potential musical ability (and practically everyone has this ability) he finds that his progress is surprisingly fast.

Second, Van Zeeland's recognize that few students have unlimited funds. Large-scale operations by a big, competent staff of teachers have reduced the cost per lesson to a very low figure. Van Zeeland's connections in the musical instrument markets make possible further savings, and the students pay for his instrument on the easiest possible terms.

As a matter of fact, it is not even necessary to purchase an instrument in order to learn to play it. This Van Zeeland plan makes it possible to accurately determine a student's possibilities and preferences in music without a cash outlay.

Van Zeeland's large stock of instruments, sheet music and musical accessories deserve consideration from everyone who plans to contemplate playing a musical instrument. The firm maintains a competent instrument repair department.

Colorado, where our government is spending millions of dollars boring through a mountain in order to bring the farmers a little more water. Certainly, it would be much better to transfer these Colorado people to Hawaii. Moreover, I guarantee that they would be happier out here!

What is the history of this outpost of the United States? The islands were first opened up by Captain Cook in 1778. For the next century, their chief importance was a popular calling place for Yankee ships in the China trade. In 1890 the population was still only 90,000. It has gradually increased until today it is over 400,000. About one-third of the people are of Japanese, Chinese, and miscellaneous descent, about one-third are of Hawaiian descent, and about one-third are of American, British, and northern European descent. I am told that about 70 per cent of the inhabitants are male. When I am next asked by women for advice as to where to go to get husbands, I will answer, "To Honolulu."

Did Great Work
For some unexplainable reason the islands are not conducive to large families. The people seem to be successful in growing everything but children. Whether the character of the young people develops as well in this sunny and healthy climate (the temperature is said never to rise above 88 degrees nor drop below 56 degrees) as in cold and rocky New England, is a debatable question. Yet, Hawaii has excellent schools. At one time the people of California sent their children to Honolulu to get a good education! The schools were founded by cultured and conscientious American missionaries, largely from New England. Sad to relate, however, too many of these missionaries were virtuous spinsters!

Unfortunately, the exploiter always follows the missionary. As Bibles were put on sale, they were accompanied by sales of whiskey. The natives — especially the rulers — were unable to withstand the temptation of liquor. After several attempts to set up a limited monarchy with a constitution and a legislature had failed, a final revolution took place, the "nineties." On July 4, 1894, the Republic of Hawaii was formed with Sanford B. Dole its first president. On July 7, 1898, the Republic of Hawaii was annexed to the United States. The islands are governed under an act of congress passed in 1900. They are now a territory and have one non-voting delegate in congress.

Economic Values Growing
You ask me why I stress so strongly the economic significance of this faraway part of the United States. It is true that the only large exports are sugar, pineapples, and various fruits. These latter are largely exported in cans. The islands, however, grow coffee, rice, bananas, figs, mangoes, nuts, and many other fruits. The total export value of Hawaiian products is about $112,000,000. I was especially impressed with the cattle and sheep which I saw on the ranges. In addition, there are large available supplies of sandstone, sulphur, gypsum, salt, and other basic resources.

Some day a great chemical industry may be located here.

The outlook for Hawaiian business for the next few months is good. While the cannon boom along the European Rhine, business will boom along the American Rhine. Hawaii's sugar crop has already skyrocketed in value. Her pineapple crop will sell higher. Tourists, turned back from Europe, will flock out here. Honolulu's harbor—the crossroads of the Pacific—will swarm with activity. Expenditures for defense will be stepped up. Remember, the biggest part of our fleet is in the Pacific and the Pearl Harbor naval base is one of the largest in the world.

Washington has been wise in spending millions for the military and naval defenses of the islands, but we must not stop here. Hawaii needs to be defended agriculturally by diversification of crops and products. Furthermore, the islands are as invaluable to us as protection from the Japanese as the Maginot line is to France as protection from the Germans. Any of our elected representatives in Washington who fought against the annexation of this "American Rhine" may have been foxy politicians, but they surely were not farsighted.

Lions Club Resumes Sessions at Brillion

Brillion—After dispensing with meetings for the summer months the local Lions club resumed its bi-monthly sessions at Hotel Brillion Thursday evening. The club's rural committee L. H. Huibregtse, chairman, August Schaefer, Dr. E. H. Kloehn and Alvin C. Wolfmeyer, was in charge. Mr. Huibregtse presided as toastmaster. The club heard Lyle Becker speak on his experiences at the Badger Boys-State at Delafield this summer. The Arno Bloedorn post of the American Legion and Lions club jointly sponsored Lyle's attendance at the camp. B. E. Mullen, who is vocational agricultural instructor at Brillion High school, also addressed the group describing the work of Future Farmers and analyzed a history of the course in agriculture in reference to 4-H Clubs.

The new president, Hilmer Johnson, presided. O. C. Wordell, secretary of the club and a delegate to the Lions International convention at Pittsburgh, Pa., in July, submitted a detailed report.
